Prime Minister Assails Foreign Policy Critics as Motion Passes by 202 - 5

By CHESTER BLOOM
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, March 29.—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King told the House of Commons last night he had been careful to say nothing in his initial speech on the San Francisco conference "to support this unfounded assumption" of critical talk "of an alleged desire on the part of the government to see Canada enrolled among the middle powers" of the United Nations.

Canada's potential contribution to the proposed world peace organization, he said, could not be measured by counting heads. Canada's military, economic and financial part in the great alliance were the measure.

But Canada, said the Prime Minister, "neither has advanced nor has any intention of advancing a claim to rank equal with the great powers" for a permanent seat on the security council.

It was one of a score of curtain-liftings on government policy toward the United Nations world order meeting at San Francisco.

NEARLY WINS PLEA

The Prime Minister nearly won his plea for an unanimous vote to send a Canadian delegation to the conference. The government resolution carried 202 to 5. The five recalcitrants were Messrs. Lacroix, Roy, Dorion, Lacombe and D'Anjou, all from Quebec. They are not members of the Bloc Populaire but an Independent group who broke

King Speech Highlights

OTTAWA, March 29—(CP)—Highlights of Prime Minister Mackenzie King's speech in the Commons:

Canada was not attempting to draw away from the British Commonwealth.

Canada and other members of the Commonwealth were agreed the Commonwealth could not speak as an entity in any world organization.

Opposition members in the Canadian delegation would go to the San Francisco conference as full members and not as associate members.

Field Marshal Smuts will visit Canada before or after the security conference.

Date of the forthcoming Dominion general election will depend to some extent on the time chosen for the Ontario election.

Proposals for the organization of an international agency to deal with education were expected to be made shortly.

Progressive Conservative members "always find it necessary to belittle Canada's war effort."

Canada would not seek a permanent seat on the security council of the world peace organization and would not seek leadership among secondary states.

Canada has made no proposal as to the use of force by the security organization.

Dominion Plan For Refunding Is More Costly

Dominion government proposals regarding an Alberta refunding plan, predicated on recognition and payment of all back interest together with differentials on unmatured bonds, involves payment of over $24,000,000 more to bondholders than the provincial refunding scheme, according to a telegram to J. A. Kingsmill, secretary, Investment Dealers Association of Canada, sent by Premier Ernest Manning, provincial treasurer.

The Dominion proposal also extends the time required to retire principal of the provincial debt, thereby resulting in a further substantial ultimate cost, the telegram points out.

The Manning telegram was in reply to a message received early this week from the Investment Dealers' Association, in which that organization protested the provincial refunding plan as "arbitrary, unfair and inequitable."

WOULD OPPOSE PLAN

The investment dealers said they would actively oppose the refunding plan, through 125 member in-

City Airman Aids In U-Boat Attack

WITH THE RCAF IN COASTAL COMMAND, March 29.—(CP)—Two German submarines, one of them lurking in the English Channel within range of ships carrying troops and supplies to Allied armies in Europe, were attacked and possibly destroyed by two coastal command planes whose crews included Canadians, it was permitted to reveal today. Dates of the attacks were not given.

An RCAF Wellington bomber crew from the famed Demon squadron scored a perfect straddle with depth charges on the U-boat in the channel. There was no trace of it after the depth charges exploded.

The crew was led by Sqdn. Ldr. C. W. Taylor, DFC, of Winnipeg, and included Flt. Lt. K. A. Blair of Melfort, Sask., second pilot who operated the searchlight; Flt. Lt. K. S. Goodman of Edmonton, navigator and wireless operator, and C. D. Myers of New Westminster, B.C., air gunner.

Warships Bombard German Positions In Northern Italy

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

ROME, March 29—(BUP)—Allied warships bombarded German positions for four days in Northern Italy along the long-dormant Franco-Italian frontier, it was disclosed today.

The naval attacks, coming during the continued lull in ground fighting along Italy's Po valley, were carried out by British and French destroyers.

The heaviest bombardment was centred on Porto Maurizio, about 10 miles east of Mentone, which is just inside France at the Italian border.

General Dan Spry May Lead Canucks In Pacific Action

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, March 29.—(CP)—Maj.-Gen. Dan Spry possibly may be one of the Canadian field commanders in the southwest Pacific when a Canadian force is sent to that theatre. At 32 he is Canada's youngest general.

This is the current speculation on this front. Gen. Spry, born in Winnipeg, has a fine record in the western European campaign, commanding the 3rd Canadian division from Caen in Normany inio Germany. He fought particularly successful battles at Boulogne, Calais and Cap Gris Nez on the French Channel coast and later in the Scheldt estuary where his division cleared the Breskens pocket south of the waterway leading to the port of Antwerp.

Desert Rats Write Great War Record

By RICHARD McMILLAN
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

WITH BRITISH SECOND ARMY IN GERMANY, March 29.—(BUP)—The "Desert Rats" are concluding what is undoubtedly the most glorious record of British arms in this war.

McMillan

Aboard some of the newest tanks I rode forward through towns and villages of Germany with the veterans whom I knew in the days of desert war and desert victory from El Alamein on. Now they are part of the Second Army slashing into Germany.

"All we want is a chance to get into Berlin first," the men said. "That will just about complete our record."

Our armored advance, which has been slowed down because of road congestion, now is opening up wider than ever and is really a lunge to victory on a massive scale.

Prisoners keep flowing back in miserable, dejected lines, their plight becoming worse when it started to rain.

Everywhere we go in Germany there is one word used—"Schluss"—which is the German for "the end."

Vote in House On Resolution

OTTAWA, March 29.—(CP)—The House of Commons yesterday went on record in favor of establishment of an international security organization by a vote of 202 to 5.

The five dissenting votes were cast by Quebec Independent members, Frederic Dorion, Charlevoix-Saguenay; J. S. Roy, Gaspe; Wilfrid Lacroix, Quebec-Montmorency; J. E. D'Anjou, Rimouski; and Ligouri Lacombe, Laval-Two Mountains.

Supporting the motion were all other Independents, Bloc Populaire, Social Credit, CCF, Progressive Conservative and Liberal members.

Garfield Case (PC, Grey North), recently elected, drew a round of applause as he cast his first vote.

'Hour of Success' Is Near Declares Premier Churchill

LONDON, March 29.—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill declared today that the "hour of success" is near.

His prediction came in a letter endorsing a government-supported Liberal candidate for parliament in a special election to fill a vacancy.

"The endurance of the British people and the steadfast devotion of the fighting services have at last brought us near the hour of success," he wrote.

"Let us now prepare to make sure for the sake of our country, our empire and civilization that we reap the due and just rewards of victory.

"That end will best be served by maintaining unity of effort and of purpose."

Japanese Placed Prisoners Close To Bomb Targets

LONDON, March 29.—(Reuters)—The Japanese placed Allied prisoner-of-war camps in Japan and Burma close to bombing targets, in an effort to make them immune from bombing, Arthur Henderson, financial secretary to the war office, said in the House of Commons today.

Despite repeated protests through the protecting power, taken after consultation with Britain's Allies, the Japanese persisted in this violation of article nine of the international convention on treatment of war prisoners, Mr. Henderson added.

Cross Rhine

LONDON, March 29.—(Reuters)—Luxembourg radio reported last night that the French 1st Army had crossed the Rhine and gained a foothold in the Province of Baden. If confirmed, this would mean elements of eight Allied armies now are across the river.

Weather Warms Across Dominion

By EDDIE LEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Temperatures from the east coast to the foothills of the Rockies this month skyrocketed to new highs, touched summer heat at many points and brought out spring flowers and swimmers earlier than for many years. Unless the experts are wrong, spring is here to stay.

This year, in Ontario and elsewhere, preparations for planting are already under way in some areas. General fear has been expressed that a late frost will damage fall wheat, now well advanced in some districts.

Thermometers at Ottawa Wednesday reached 77 degrees, highest for the date in the city in 55 years. Edmonton's 52 degrees was warmer than the city has been on the same date in 63 years.

Montreal was 77, Toronto 73, Regina 46, Saskatoon 56 and Calgary 49. Winnipeg recorded a high for the month on March 21 of 63 and although the city temperature was only 34 yesterday the month's average for the city and province is above normal.

Nazis Say Defence Is More Successful

LONDON, March 29—(AP)—German broadcasters virtually admitted yesterday that Hitler's cause was lost, then shifted the propaganda line abruptly last night and contended, "German resistance all along the western front is stiffening". The Germans, possibly fishing for information, claimed their defence was growing more successful.

Mild Weather

Weather forecast for the Edmonton area is "Cloudy Friday morning, bright and warmer in the afternoon."

Maximum temperature in Edmonton yesterday was 52 above zero, and the minimum 25. The overnight low was 24, and at 2 p.m. it was 45. Estimated high for today is 45; estimated overnight low is 24, and the high tomorrow, 55.

Montgomery's Troops Open Up Clear Road to Enemy Capital

From AP and BUP Dispatches

PARIS, March 29.—In a brilliantly-executed flanking movement which imperilled all the German troops in the Ruhr basin and forced hurried withdrawals along a 200-mile front, British armored columns plunged through broken German lines before Muenster, capital of the German province of Westphalia, today. This move on the traffic hub 225 miles from Berlin may well be the beginning of the end, as a clear road to the capital of the Reich now lies before the 21st Army Group of Field Marshal Montgomery.

At the same time American First and Third Army tanks converged on the Hessian city of Kassel, which lies 166 miles from Berlin. The First Army units wheeled northward in a sudden spurt that carried them nearly 40 miles north of Giessen, starting a giant enveloping movement that threatens to sever the Ruhr from Central Germany and depriving the Nazis of their greatest arsenal.

WITH THE BRITISH 2nd ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, March 29—(Reuters)—British 2nd Army forces have pushed eastward from Dorsten, 16 miles east of Wesel on the Rhine, to clear the town of Haltern, 27 miles east of Wesel, and only 24 miles southwest of Muenster.

SENSATIONAL GAINS

It was another day of sensational gains against opposition which was growing more feeble hour by hour as the retreat in places turned into a rout which threatens to become general.

The day was climaxed by the surrender of Mannheim to the Seventh American Army, the first voluntary capitulation of any major German city. Mannheim, on the east bank of the Rhine opposite the captured chemical centre of Ludwigshafen, is the second largest inland port in Germany. It ranks behind Duisburg where elements of the Ninth American Army are fighting for possession. With a pre-war population of more than 280,000, it is Germany's 23rd city, and the Increase Price On Newsprint

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP)—An increase of $3 a ton in manufacturer's ceiling prices for newsprint has been authorized, effective immediately.

Announcing the increase today, the Office of Price Administration attributed it to below-normal earnings for the United States newsprint industry.

It is the third increase since newsprint was put under price control in March, 1942.

The increase will lift to $61 a ton the ceiling price for standard newsprint delivered to 38 port cities. There are separate ceilings for deliveries in 10 specified zones and these are likewise raised $3 a ton. The ceiling price for the base zone, No. 4, becomes $62 a ton.

OTTAWA, March 29.—(CP)—Prices Board officials declined today to comment on a Washington announcement of an increase of $3 a ton in manufacturer's ceiling prices for newsprint but it was understood here that the increase would apply to newsprint of any origin. This would mean that Canadian manufacturers likely would receive some benefit from the increase. It was believed some part of the increase would go to distributors in the United States.

Planes and Ships Blast Jap Isles

GUAM, March 29.—(AP)—Battleships, which began shelling the Ryukyus islands south of Japan Friday, blazed away Wednesday and carrier planes kept on dealing blows which already have damaged more than 17 enemy ships, including three destroyers, United States Pacific fleet headquarters reported today.

A communique credited the carrier planes with shooting down 25 enemy planes, burning 13 more on the ground nad blasting submarine pens at Okinawa between Sunday and Tuesday. It said nothing about an invasion.

Parcel Warning

OTTAWA, March 29. — (CP) — War Services Minister LaFleche yesterday reiterated in the Commons a government warning against sending individual parcels to Canadian prisoners-of-war in Germany.

Russians Cross Austria Border

By ROBERT MUSEL
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, March 29.—(BUP)—Marshal Stalin announced today that Russian troops had crossed the Austrian border, had captured the great northwest Hungarian frontier of Szombathely and had swept up to 44 miles of Vienna.

Stalin hailed the "impetuous advance" of Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army for its sweep across Hungary into Austria.

Earlier the "Free Austrian radio" said that the Red Army swept into Austria at a point 40-odd miles southwest of Vienna.

Bigamist Pleads Only Looking For "Happiness, Pal"

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29.—(AP)—Rotund, little Francis Van Wie broke for the first time on the witness stand yesterday as he sobbingly told Judge Herbert Kaufman he was "only looking for happiness and a pal" in his multiple - marriage career.

Francis Van Wie

The mild-mannered, 58-year-old trolley conductor, convicted last week on three counts of bigamy, is being tried on a plea of innocent by reason of insanity.

Van Wie was asked why he married his last wife, 12th or 13th on the list, when he already had so many others.

"I was looking for a certain something," Van Wie replied.

"What do you mean, a certain something?" asked the judge.

Van Wie's eyes filled, tears coursed down his cheeks and his voice wavered as he said he sought only "happiness and a pal."

"Business as Usual" In Britain on V-Day

LONDON, March 29. — (CP) — Here are Britain's tentative official "V-Day" plans: On the day hostilities with Germany end, the King or prime minister will make the announcement on the radio, but—officially, at least—it still will be "business as usual." A national holiday will be declared for the following day, however, for celebrations and church services.

A further breakthrough in the direction of Vienna is imminent," the station, presumably Soviet-controlled, said. It appealed to Austrians to desert the German army and Volkssturm (home guard).

"The hour of liberation is dawning," the broadcast proclaimed.

Radio Berlin, meantime, said the Germans had evacuated their pocket in the big bend of the Oder river at Zehden, 31 miles northeast of Berlin.

CLAIM REDS REPULSED

The evacuation was carried out in "stubborn fighting," the broadcast said. "Weak" Russian attempts to force the Oder in pursuit were frustrated, Berlin said.

The Russians presumably advanced southwest from Zehden to the Oder itself, 28 miles from Berlin's city limits. The Zehden pocket was the last enemy toehold on the right bank of the Oder between the eastern approaches of Berlin and the Baltic.

First across the Austrian border was Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrsinian Army group, the station said. Tolbukhin's forces were only nine miles from the

Japan Expects German Leaders 'Any Time Now'

MOSCOW, March 29—(AP)—A Romanian diplomat en route home from Tokyo asserted yesterday that the Japanese firmly expected Adolf Hitler, Heinrich Himmler and Benito Mussolini to seek refuge in Japan "almost any time" now that Germany's cause seems hopeless.

"The fact is, they've been expecting them for a long time," declared Victor Gutxulesco, a former member of the Romanian embassy staff in Tokyo who has just arrived in Moscow.

Gutxulesco said he had found an unmistakable spirit of defeat prevailing everywhere among the Japanese.

Supply Chief Factor

Victory In the West Still Some Time Off

The German army in the west is being captured at the rate of a division a day. Allied tank spearheads are riddling the front. Victory is in the air, but when it will materialize is an open question. Boyd D. Lewis, British United Press correspondent, surveys the situation from his vantage post at supreme Allied headquarters at Paris.—EDITOR.

By BOYD D. LEWIS
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

PARIS, March 29.—(BUP)—When will the war in Europe end?

The nearest thing to an expert opinion available at Supreme Allied Headquarters is that the final collapse of German resistance is still a considerable distance away.

How far away will depend upon our ability to keep supplies flowing across the Rhine—on which not a single permanent bridge remains—and streaming through a hostile countryside to our speeding armored spearheads.

Despite their losses, the Germans still have possibly 1,250,000 troops in the west, of which 250,000 are in combat units.

They are a whipped army, as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said. Their morale is a far cry from what SEEK IDENTITY—Initials on a worn gold ring are the clues by which records branch of the Canadian Army hopes to link a name with the body of an unknown soldier who died in action in Italy. The soldier—lacking identity disk and distinguishing marks of rank and unit—was buried sometime before Oct. 2, 1944, at Coriano Ridge, Italy. The ring taken from his hand is a signet. On its squaring face it bears a scroll across the upper left-hand corner, with the initials CLM. Inside, the band is engraved with an X, and following it, the letters JHW.

Japs Say Planes Hit Naval Base

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29—(AP)—American carrier planes attacked the big naval base of Kure on the island sea shores of Honshu island, Japan, and others hit the southern homeland island of Kyushu in raids early Thursday (Tokyo time), the enemy radio reported without confirmation.

The Kure naval base is one of the points where United States carrier planes found elements of the Japanese home fleet in a raid March 19 during which 17 enemy warships were damaged.

Tokyo, whose broadcast was intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission, said the Thursday raiders dropped "some bombs" but that damage to military facilities was "negligible."

Both this report and another which placed carrier planes over Kyushu Wednesday have not been confirmed by the United States Pacific fleet headquarters at Guam.

Alberta Airmen Quickly Rescued In Ocean Crash

COLOMBO, Ceylon, March 29—(CP-Anela)—The crew of an RCAF heavy reconnaissance bomber is back in Ceylon after being forced to crash land in the ocean and being picked up by a Netherlands merchant ship.

The plane ran into trouble when it encountered a storm on the return from a mission. Almost at the exact minute the gasoline was calculated to run out, the airmen sighted the Netherlands ship and the pilot let the bomber down a few hundred yards to starboard.

Canadians in the crew included: FO. S. D. Turner, Calgary, Alta.; Sgt. A. L. James, Calgary and PO. F. M. Yeomens, Blackie, Alta.

HOLLYWOOD, March 29.—Went to Palm Springs for a little sun and rest and they really charge you for rooms there. The better dude ranches get as high as $50 a day. I found a place for $2 . . . but I'm having a little trouble getting the saddle on the gopher. But I finally went riding . . what a horse they gave me! You've heard of Sea Biscuit? Well, this looked like one of his crumbs. Horseback riding . . . that's where you accentuate the positive as much as possible because, by the time you get out of the saddle, it's really gonna be negative. But after three days I'm now at home in the saddle . . . and next week they've promised me a room. But that dude ranch is so ritzy the rattlesnakes around there carry chimes. And it's really lonesome out on that desert. It's so lonesome, I saw a Jack rabbit down on one knee in front of a gopher hole singing, "Don't Fence Me Out!" I went out to lasso some steers and was gone all afternoon. They were beginning to worry about me before I finally came dragging in. That'll teach me to tie my end of the rope to my belt.

Advance Threatens All Nazis in Ruhr largest, next to Cologne, yet captured by the Western allies.

Reports from the front say the mayor of Mannheim surrendered to the Americans by telephone. The official is said to have telephoned Seventh Army officers in a building near the city, informing them that there were no German soldiers left in Mannheim and surrendering the city to the invading forces.

NAZI BLACKEST DAY

Lt. Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey's Second British army gave the Nazi High Command their blackest day since the advance over the Rhine began. Field dispatches say that the British tanks swept more than 20 miles beyond their last reported positions in the broken area to an undisclosed point 50 miles east of the Rhine.

Racing through dozens of German villages festooned with the white flags of surrender, Dempsey's forces are closing swiftly on Muenster. A military security blackout enforced by Field Marshal Montgomery cloaked the exact whereabouts of the forward British columns, but it was indicated that early this morning they were less than a dozen miles southwest of Muenster.

A rigid security blackout was also imposed on the advance of the entire U.S. Ninth Army in the north of the Ruhr, but authorities permitted the disclosure that they had gained as much as ten miles in their initial drive today.

CANADIANS IN VAN

Canadians are in the spearhead of the 21st Army Group advance. Western Canadian infantry are driving the Germans out of Emmerich in spite of stern resistance by SS panzer division. The security blackout prevents further details being given, but headquarters reports say that the Canadians are steadily advancing and are dealing decisively with Volkstrum battalions and Nazi paratroopers who are fighting with the "fury of wild animals at bay."

Muenster has already been bypassed by advanced armored spearheads and Osnabruck and Hanover are now threatened. Numerous other cities are within the grasp of the charging Allies. Among these are Kassel (217,085), 43 miles from the First U.S. Army; Essen (660,000), six miles from the Ninth, and Heidelberg (85,000), six miles from the Seventh Army.

Armies in the north were at these portions before the blackout was imposed: Hamm (52,000), eastern exit of the Ruhr, 24 miles away; Mulheim (136,805), five; Gelsenkirchen (313,000), six; Bochum (303,000), 11; Oberhausen (191,305), two; and Dortmund (537,000), 19.

All the Rhine from Bonn to Mannheim, a winding stretch of nearly 200 miles, was in Allied hands.

DRIVE ON NUERNBERG

The 7th Army east of the river main put assault teams from its 100,000 or more combat troops east of the Rhine on a beeline for the great Nazi party city of Nuernberg (431,000), 89 miles away. First and 3rd Army troops in the heart of Germany were put 152 miles west of Leipzig (701,060), threatened on the east by strong Russian armies.

Prime Minister Churchill declared that the "hour of success" was near.

More than 23,000 Germans—the equivalent of more than two of the 65 divisions estimated to be fighting in the west—surrendered in a single day.

SWIFT ADVANCE

All western Germany is being chewed up swiftly. Allied armor is moving as fast as it did through France last fall, and with little opposition. The whole advance along the entire front is more reminiscent of peace time manoeuvres than an advance through hostile enemy territory.

While the British in the centre of Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery's First Army are striking hard and deep, the fighting is tougher on the flanks. In the north, Canadian troops are having a grim struggle, but are steadily moving forward.

At the other end of Montgomery's line, American Ninth Army troops also were meeting fanatical resistance as they drove into the northern fringe of the Ruhr. They captured the area of the great inland port of Duisburg and are fighting for the Ruhr industrial centre of Gladbeck, north of Essen.

The British armored vanguard includes troops who staged the war's record non-stop advance last autumn in a 225-mile drive from the Seine to beyond Brussels in four days, covering 60 miles in 24 hours.

TO VISIT CANADA—Field Marshal Smuts, prime minister of South Africa, will visit Canada either before or after the San Francisco conference, Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday told the House of Commons. Mr. King said he had extended an invitation to Gen. Smuts to visit Canada when he had learned that the South African prime minister would be at San Francisco. Gen. Smuts had taken an important part in bringing the League of Nations into being and had an experience on matters of world organization unequalled by anyone.

Only "Canadians" May Vote Under New Quebec Act

QUEBEC, March 29.—(CP)—The proposed Quebec Election Act, to be studied next week by a special committee of the Quebec Legislature, would make compulsory for voters in the province to be of "Canadian nationality" while, formerly, they only needed to be British subjects.

The change would make the provincial law conform with the federal election legislation. Well-informed sources here explain that the change would be "merely an affirmation of principle."

The text of the bill says that the right to vote "is conferred upon any person . . . who was of Canadian nationality on the first day set for enumeration and who still is at the time of voting."

Australia Seeks Feed For Stock

CANBERRA, March 29.—(CP)—Australia is making urgent representations to Washington in the hope the United States may be able to supply maize and other coarse grains to feed her stock, facing a feed shortage through poor field crop yields this season. Agriculture Minister Scully, in making the announcement yesterday, said it was hoped Australian ships could be sent to pick up such supplies from the United States.

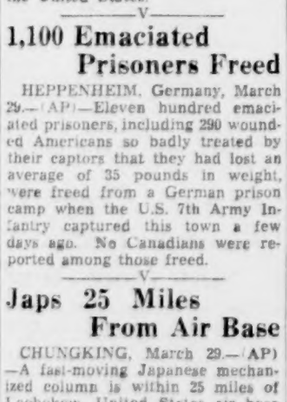

1,100 Emaciated Prisoners Freed

HEPPENHEIM, Germany, March 29.—(AP)—Eleven hundred emaciated prisoners, including 290 wounded Americans so badly treated by their captors that they had lost an average of 35 pounds in weight, were freed from a German prison camp when the U.S. 7th Army Infantry captured this town a few days ago. No Canadians were reported among those freed.

CHUNGKING, March 29.—(AP)—A fast-moving Japanese mechanized column is within 25 miles of Laohokow, United States air base 200 miles northwest of Hankow, the Chinese high command announced last night. Loss of Laohokow would eliminate one of the principal bases for American air actions against Japanese communications in north China.

It has been estimated that a welder's flame on a clear day could be visible for 15 miles.

Victory in West Still Believed Some Time Off

it was a year ago or even last December.

STILL KILLING ALLIES

But they still are killing Britons, Canadians and Americans — and they will continue to kill them for many weeks to come.

Adolf Hitler is still very much in the saddle, with dreaded Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler beside him, according to best opinion here. A captured German psychological warfare officer told me at the front recently that Hitler has ruled unchallenged since the purge following the attempt on his life last July.

This officer also maintained that the Germans never would use gas, Hitler, who suffered from gas in the last war, would not permit its use, he said.

NAZIS' BIG PROBLEM

The Germans' worst problem is transportation. Largely because of Allied air raids, German railways are broken and unusable. A gasoline shortage hampers use of motor vehicles.

Thus Marshal Albert Kesselring finds himself increasingly less mobile as good weather permits heavier air raids at the very moment the Allies have torn past the defence crust on the east bank of the Rhine.

Substantial forces remain in Italy and Norway, but they couldn't be brought to the west battlefield in time to have any effect. Perhaps Hitler soon will move something back from the East front if he feels he can do so without unleashing the Russian masses.

PATTERN FOR VICTORY

What is the pattern for crushing Germany?

The best image in the clouded crystal ball at this moment seems to be the systematic destruction of the remaining German resistance—the gradual hammering of the die-hard thugs and Nazi cut-throats into the southern Alpine redoubt and then turning loose upon them the concentrated power of Allied air forces.

ROLL ALONG HIGHWAYS

Moscow said the Third and Fourth Ukrainian Army groups were rolling along two highways skirting Lake Neusiedler, southeast of Vienna.

There appeared little prospect that the disorganized, retreating Germans could halt the Russian drive even at Vienna's last-ditch defence line anchored on Lake Neusiedler, the Hungarian town of Sopron and Bratislava, capital of Slovakia.

The defence line curves to within 20 miles of Vienna and may be reached by the Red Army within the next 48 hours.

(The OWI said a dispatch in the Swedish Svenska Dagsbladet reported that a state of emergency had been declared in Vienna and the city's outer fortifications alerted.)

Refugee Germans Are Being Herded About Like Cattle

STOCKHOLM, March 29—(AP)—More than 50,000,000 bombed-out or refugee Germans are milling around behind the German lines, impeding the defence and intensifying the confusion of defeat inside the Reich, it was reported yesterday by sources intimately acquainted with the country's internal condition. There is such chaos that the authorities have found no way to utilize these people in their last stand and are herding them around like cattle.

Canadians May Open Drive to Free Holland

By ROBERT DOWNSON

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, March 29.—(BUP)—An Allied drive into central and northern Holland, lair of Germany's V-bomb offensive against England, appeared near today.

Deputy Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee told Commons last night that plans were being made to free all Holland, but declined to discuss details.

Wilson Broadbent, diplomatic correspondent for the London Daily Mail, predicted news of rapid Allied progress in numerous directions on the western front within the next 48 hours.

RELIEVE THREAT

"All these will add to the tally of German defeat and incidentally relieve the threat of desperate Nazi reprisals on London by way of aerial attacks," he said. "In this respect, the most spectacular news may come this week."

Leon Kay, British United Press war correspondent with Canadian forces on the western front, reported the Canadians already were threatening high ground whose capture would make the key Dutch road junction of Arnhem across the Waal river untenable.

If the Germans should evacuate Arnhem, he said, the Canadians can sweep on into northern Holland and bottle up the remaining enemy troops as far as the Zuider Zee. From Arnhem, the Canadians also could push west toward Rotterdam, Amsterdam and The Hague.

Fourteen Probably Aboard Lost Plane

MONTREAL, March 29.—(CP)—Probably 14 persons were aboard the Liberator "Commando", reported missing on a flight from Britain to Canada with high British officials aboard, it was indicated last night.

Prime Minister Churchill mentioned five men as being aboard.

In addition, the RAF transport command here disclosed, there were two other passengers—Sqdn. Ldr. E. G. Plum, personal assistant to Air Marshal Sir Peter Drummond, and E. Robinson, private secretary to Cmdr. Rupert Brabner, under secretary of state for air.

Cmdr. Brabner and Sir Peter were aboard, Mr. Churchill said. In her many special missions the Commando has never carried less than seven in her crew and it is presumed she had a crew of seven this time.

Transport Command officials said last night that air-sea rescue planes were still searching for survivors, after some wreckage had been found close to where the plane is presumed to have fallen. The planes of the air-sea rescue patrols were being assisted by Coastal Command aircraft and by a warship.

Efforts of RCMP to recover the body of two-year-old Joseph McLaughlin, of the Clover Bar district, believed to have been drowned in the Saskatchewan river on Tuesday, have been unsuccessful according to a headquarters spokesman.

Text of the premier's telegram in reply is below:

"Mr. Ilsley's proposal predicated on recognition and payment of all back interest together with differentials on unmatured bonds involves payment to bondholders of over $24,000,000 more than amount provided for compensation in government's offer and further extends time required to retire principal thereby resulting in a further substantial ultimate cost to province."

"Fact that federal government subject to conditions referred to above is prepared assume substantial portion these excessive extra costs does not alter unfairness of such a one-sided proposal involving no compromise on part of bondholders.

NOT ARBITRARY

"Government's offer not intended as arbitrary but represents a sincere effort to effect a satisfactory settlement in best interests of bondholders as well as province.

"For this reason I sincerely trust Investment Dealers' Association will not be a party to active opposition to government's proposal which has met with generally satisfactory reaction from rank and file of bondholders."

Plan Art Contest On City's History

Through co-operation of the Hudson's Bay Company and the Edmonton Museum of Arts, an art competition has been arranged, the general nature of which is a series of illustrations in color, and in recognized art media, of six outstanding events in the growth of Edmonton. To give the artists some idea of such outstanding events, the following is suggested.

The founding of the first Fort Edmonton, about 1795, located on the north bank of the Saskatchewan river, near the mouth of the Sturgeon river; founding of the second Fort Edmonton, located almost on the site of the present legislative buildings; the coming of the railway to Edmonton. The entrance of the Canadian Northern, now the Canadian National, placed Edmonton on a transcontinental line.

The location of the capital in Edmonton and the building of the present legislative buildings; building of the high-level bridge, which linked together Edmonton and Strathcona as one city; building of the Alaska highway, connecting Edmonton with Alaska.

Strict photographic accuracy is not required so much as an interpretation of the spirit of the times of each event illustrated. Either water color or oils should be used as the media, and the size of each picture should not be less than approximately 22 by 28 inches.

The award for first prize in each is $25, and $10 for second. The contest ends Monday, April 16. All pictures should be brought to the Edmonton Museum of Arts.

MP Charges Phone Wires Being Tapped

OTTAWA, March 29—(CP)—Opposition members o the Commons yesterday suggested that the government investigate reports that telephone wires were being tapped and conversations recorded.

The suggestions came after J. F. Pouliot (Ind.-L-Temiscouata) said that his local and long distance calls were being listened to and recorded. He urged the establishment of a committee that would hear the sworn evidence of Bell Telephone officials.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said that if Mr. Pouliot would prefer some definite charge the matter would be investigated. However, the government could not investigate every rumor.

Canada's Plans For Northwest Not Yet Known

OTTAWA, March 29—(CP)—Canada is going to take over United States army facilities in the northwest, but is not ready to announce any decision on the future use of the Alaska Highway and the Fort Norman oil wells, according to documents tabled yesterday in the Commons.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, replying to questions from George Black (PC-Yukon), tabled an exchange of notes between Canada and the United States on an agreement for the disposition of United States on an agreement for the disposition of United States army property in the northwest.

JOINT APPRAISAL

The exchange of notes contained an agreement providing for joint appraisal of all immovables with the Canadian government taking over property at "fair market value" and with the Canadian expenses of disposal and demolition being considered in the final accounting.

All property not given in a United States prepared list will automatically be placed at the disposal of federal or provincial governments a year after cessation of hostilities.

In the case of moveables, the United States will remove any items it wants with Canada purchasing items for her own use or disposition. All other moveables will be transferred to an appropriate government agency for sale, with proceeds going to the United States government. Prices will be fixed by joint agreement between representatives of the two governments.

UNSOLD ITEMS PLAN

Items remaining unsold after two years from the time they are transferred to the Canadian agency either will be declared of no value and the account closed or the United States will be allowed to take up an option of moving them. Any expenses will be borne by the United States government.

The Standard Oil Company, agent for the United States Army, is discontinuing oil operations in the Yukon and Northwest Territories, a parliamentary return disclosed.

In reply to Mr. Black's question as to whether the Canadian government was prepared to take over where Standard Oil left off the return said:

"There are many factors involved in any such decision and these are at present under examination. Any decision with regard to the future use of wartime installations will, of course, not necessarily affect the continuation of commercial oil operations entered at Fort Norman.

Change Pharmacy Training Program

A new system of interneship for pharmacy students will replace the present apprentice system, according to terms of a bill consolidating the Alberta Pharmaceutical Association Act which has been brought into the Legislature. The bill now is in committee of the whole stage.

According to M. J. Warner, past president of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association, the legislation is designed to make the pharmacy profession more attractive to students. Changes from the present pharmacy training program stem from recommendations approved at a 1944 conference of deans of pharmacy at various Canadian universities.

Under the old pharmacy act, a three-year apprenticeship was required before a student could go ahead with a two-year pharmacy course.

The new act will allow a student to go direct from high school into university, to begin a three-year pharmacy course. A 24-month period of interneship must be served by the student, either before he enters university or between university terms.

Say Pope Backs Just Punishment For War Crimes

VATICAN CITY, March 29—(AP)—Osservatore Romano, the Vatican City newspaper, replying again to attacks on the Vatican in the Soviet Press, asserted yesterday that Pope Pius XII had repeatedly and clearly expressed approval of just punishment for war criminals.

The newspaper added that the Pope condemned "The totalitarian and violent regimes even before they reached their most tremendous and conclusive experiment, considering them a violation of human rights and an offence against Divine law and the principles of the gospel."

The publication called upon the Soviet Press to produce evidence that the pontiff had acted to the contrary.

Americans Eating Less Meat Than Canadians During 1945

By CHESTER BLOOM

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, March 29.—Analysis of the statement by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, in the house Tuesday, that Americans are eating more meat per capita than Canadians was based on 1944 figures. Since the United States has made a cut of about 12 per cent on U.S. estimated meat consumption for 1945, unless Canada follows suit, American meat eating for this year will be considerably below

The 1944 figures for Canadian and American meat consumption, prepared on a comparative basis by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the U.S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics are as follows:

Civilian meat consumption per capita, 1944—

	Canada Lbs.	U.S. Lbs.
Beef	61.7	53.0
Veal	11.0	12.0
Lamb and mutton	4.8	6.2
Pork (including lard)	61.4	75.8
Totals	138.9	147.0

The original estimates of total meat consumption per capita per annum for 1945 were prepared by the two governments to permit slight reductions to 132 pounds for Canadians and 131.9 pounds for Americans. But the U.S.'s recent decision to cut American meat consumption per capita in 1945 by 12 per cent. would reduce the U.S. civilian to 115 pounds per year.

EXPECT RATIONING

It is anticipated, however, that the Canadian government will shortly announce meat rationing to reduce Canadian consumption for 1945 to a comparative figure as the agreement between the members of the Combined Food Board (including Canada and the U.S.) is that these countries shall remain on a food parity as nearly as possible.

Red Cross Drive Is Given Support

Swelled by donations of $9,645 from two Edmonton packing plants and their employees, the Northern Alberta Red Cross campaign committee's Thursday receipts amounted to $272,198, of which $174,893 came from city contributors.

From the Swift Canadian Company Ltd. came $4,345, with a further $3,000 from the firm's employees. Gainers Ltd. contributed $1,000, with $1,300 from the staff.

The drive, which has been carried on for the last month, concludes at the end of this week. Both the national and the Northern Alberta targets were passed last week, and donations received between now and March 31 will add just that much more to the war work of the Red Cross. Last year's total was $177,000.

Donations exceeding $100 were acknowledged Thursday from Weiller and Williams, International Harvester Company, Ltd., the firm's employees, John Deere Plow Company Ltd., Armitage McBain Lumber Company; North West Air Lines, U.S. Army Air Base personnel, Provincial News, residents of Wabamum, Prudham Construction Company, Ltd., staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and "Anonymous."

Critics of Foreign Policy Lashed by Premier King As Motion Passed 202-5

from the government on the conscription issue and reputedly are friendly to Premier Duplessis.

Mr. King spoke for an hour and 55 minutes. Twice he engaged in short but furious cross-fire with the opposition. Occasionally he was heated, at times eloquent but for the most part calmly expositional. He finished the hard ordeal apparently as fresh as when he began, a marvel of endurance.

Some of the main points were:

The Prime Minister would not accept chairmanship of the San Francisco conference, even if it were tendered him, because of his need to concentrate on steering the nation in war time.

TO HEAD DELEGATION

Mr. King, however, will head the delegation to San Francisco, even though a general campaign election is impending "shortly". He might be absent a month, missing some part in the election battle. But he could not fix the election date until he knew when the Ontario election would take place.

The government will submit no amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks proposals until after a conference with other British Commonwealth representatives at San Francisco.

Again and again and again, he iterated and reiterated that his initial statement to the house that any military commitments of Canada to the security council would first be submitted to parliament, were the proposals of Dumbarton Oaks, not his, to be up at San Francisco for discussion.

"I was stating a fact," he said, "the proposals (on military commitments) are not the proposals I made; they are the proposals made by the great powers acting together."

EXPLAINS REASON

The reason why the great powers had suggested that military commitments must be approved by the constitutional legislative body of each nation, he believed, was aimed to bring in the lesser powers to the organization with the weight of the public opinion of their people behind them.

His clashes with the opposition took place over his allegations that they had misrepresented his position on this point; that their representations were spreading false impressions of Canada's attitude among the other United Nations.

Mr. King fiercely resented inferences drawn by the opposition from his military commitments statement that Canada had not much to worry about in entering the United Nations organization; that there was very little obligation incurred; that the government was trying to leave open an exit from obligations to appease isolationist sentiment.

NOT RIGHT IMPRESSION

"I want other nations to know," he said at one point, "that my statement did not convey the impression that different opposition members have given." It did not, he said, "create the impression that Canada would underwrite world security conditionally or partially."

The prime minister quoted at length from his speech in the last regular session to show how he had consistently opposed the idea of the British Commonwealth "speaking with one voice."

The government will take full responsibility for all decisions made at the San Francisco conference. But the prime minister said he hoped to have the delegation speak for Canada as a non-partisan unit. However, if any member of the delegation finds it impossible to agree with the others, he will not be prevented from making his views known.

STARTS WITH APPEAL

At the beginning of his speech, the prime minister appealed to four or five members from Quebec, whom he said, had stated they would vote against the resolution to send a delegation to San Francisco.

"I appeal to them," he said, "to reconsider their intention in the interests of Canada as a whole. It is not too late for Canada to speak with a single voice on the desirability of bringing into being an organization that will help maintain the peace of the world.

"I speak directly to the honorable gentlemen: I want to make clear to them that they will not be representing the feelings of the peoples of Quebec; they will not be honestly representing the feelings of the people of the constituencies which they represent in this parliament. . . ."

"That may be your opinion," interjected J. Sasseville Roy (Liberal, Gaspe.

"I believe history will prove that I am right," declared the prime minister, who then proceeded to read the resolution, paragraph by paragraph, commenting on each.

Those who voted with Mr. Roy, he said, would be voting against attending a conference of 44 nations united in the cause of freedom, now seeking to take the step of forming an organization "which will help maintain peace, when this terrible war has come to a close."

READS SECOND CLAUSE

Reading the second clause which recognizes that an effective organization for the maintenance of international peace and security is of vital interest to Canada, and to the future well-being of mankind and that Canada should become a member, Mr. King asked:

"In the light of what these honorable gentlemen themselves know and have witnessed during the past five and a half years of war, how can they vote against a resolution which says it is in the interest of Canada to have an organization which will prevent anything of that kind arising in the future?"

Then the prime minister read from the Dumbarton Oaks document the sections which set forth the objectives and principles of the organization as follows:

MAINTAIN SECURITY

1.—To maintain international peace and security, take effective collective measures to prevent and remove threats to peace; bring about by peaceful means adjustment or settlement of international disputes and,

2.—Develop friendly relations among nations, and take measures to strengthen universal peace,

3.—Achieve international co-operation in the solution of international economic, social and other humanitarian problems, and,

4.—Afford a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in achieving these ends.

"These," said the prime minister, "are the purposes apparently these honorable gentlemen are unwilling to endorse. The principles against which they will be voting, because they are part of the resolution," he said, embraced the following:

1.—Sovereign equality of all peace-loving nations.

2.—All members undertake, in order to ensure all of them the rights and benefits of the organization, to fulfill the obligations assumed by them under the charter.

3.—All members to settle disputes by peaceful means that international peace and security may not be endangered.

4.—All members of the organization to refrain in international relations from the threat or use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the organization.

ASSIST ORGANIZATION

5.—All members to assist the organization in any action undertaken by it, in accordance with the charter.

6.—All members to refrain from giving aid to any state against which preventive or enforcement action is being undertaken by the organization; the organization should ensure that states not members of it act in accordance with these principles, so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

The members, said Mr. King, were being asked to send a delegation to San Francisco to help frame a charter, and to see, as far as humanly possible, nothing is inserted in that charter which will do other than serve its great objects.

Mr. King said he had read all the purposes and principles of the proposed organization, and added:

"I fail to see how any citizen of any country, loving his country, and thinking of the future, would wish to do other than embrace these principles and purposes with his whole heart."

FOURTH PARAGRAPH

The Prime Minister read the fourth paragraph of the government resolution commiting the delegates from Canada to use their best endeavors to further the preparation of an acceptable charter for the international peace maintaining organization, and:

"That the charter establishing the international organization should, before ratification, be submitted to parliament for approval."

Again, the Prime Minister appealed to the "four or five" to vote for the resolution. "Every member," he said, "had an obligation to the country in its domestic affairs, but, at a time like the present," he said, "he had an even greater obligation in regards to its position in the world" . . . "I am appealing to my honorable friends to meet all their obligations to Canada as a whole, as her actions will be viewed by nations abroad when they read the results of the vote which will be taken this afternoon.

"I would like to see," Mr. King declared amid general applause, "that vote one hundred per cent of the House of Commons, and the Senate of Canada.

"I would ask honorable members if they have no compunction still; that perhaps they might absent themselves when the vote is being taken, rather than have it broadcast throughout the world that in Canada there were members who voted indicating their belief that they were unable to further a great world need."

DISCUSSES QUESTIONS

Mr. King then proceeded to discuss a number of the questions that had been put to him in opposition speeches; the most essential ones he said, as there had been a great deal of repetition. He said first that there had been some veiled insinuations of a close relationship between the leader of the CCF, M. J. Coldwell, and himself, on the speech of the latter and his own, and "that nothing of the kind had existed."

Also he wished to point out that the Dumbarton Oaks proposals had been before the country and members of Parliament ever since October, 1944, when he had released to the press a short statement on them. At that time he had suggested that not only members of Parliament, but the citizens of Canada generally, should study the proposals. It could not be said there had not been sufficient time for the members to study them, and then he read his press release in which he had outlined how far agreement had been reached at Dumbarton Oaks.

SUSIE Q. SMITH—"Frankly, I prefer games that require less concentration!"

One paragraph had read: "It is sincerely necessary for me to say that before any final commitment it entered into with respect to the participation of Canada in a general international organization, there will be the fullest opportunity for discussion in the Parliament of Canada."

READS STATEMENT

"The press of the country," he said, "had been full of opinions on the subject. "It had been widely announced that these proposals were one of the two important matters which would be discussed at this session, and he read his statement on that point.

The prime minister also related how he had called in the leader of the CCF and the leader of the opposition to consult on the subject. He was sorry he could not reach the leader of the Social Credit Party as he was not in the city at the time. But on the Friday prior to the assembly of Parliament, he had met the two other leaders in his office, and indicated to them the order of business the government proposed, and read over to them the proposed government resolution that they might be prepared to speak on it. He could not have done more except give them a copy of his speech which was "still in incubation."

Mr. King said he had little exception to take to the criticism voiced in the House except one, "a deliberate misrepresentation" of what he had said and the endeavor, "not by one but by one and after another of members of the official opposition opposite—to have it appear that I had made certain proposals with which I myself have had nothing whatever to do". He would refer to them a little later on.

Mr. King said he thought it was "a pretty poor debate of such a great international matter". He had hoped from the outset that the question would be above party debate.

'But", he said, "honorable gentlemen opposite have become so accustomed to directing attacks upon myself and misrepresenting my position that they cannot even refrain from so doing in a great international debate. It only indicates how biased they have become in their point of view towards anything the government may undertake".

ALWAYS DOUBT TRUTH

Why was it always necessary, the Prime Minister asked, for the opposition always to seek to find some ground for suspicion as to the truth of what one is saying.

"Why now and then at least", he said, "when a member of the government makes a statement which he says is true, honorable gentlemen cannot accept that statement on his word and without some searching for an ulterior partisan political motive in the making of it, I cannot understand".

This led to a fierce clash.

Gordon K. Fraser, Progressive Conservative, Peterborough West, interjected: "You said the first day we could ask questions and then you stopped us".

Some uproar followed in which Lieut. Col. J. A. Ross, Progressive Conservative, Souris, called: "Page the ex-minister of national defence".

The jeers, outcries and catcalls redoubled at this and Mr. King raised his voice above them to assert:

"Perhaps my restless friend will try to keep quiet. I know that it is very hard for him to do it".

"Then do not make misstatements", shouted Mr. Fraser at the top of his voice over the uproar.

The prime minister turned to the speaker and said: "If the honorable gentlemen opposite are determined to get into a rebellious mood, I would ask you, Mr. Speaker, very strongly to protect me so that I can make my speech without interruption."

Loud jeers and laughter came from the opposition at this, but Mr. King went on:

"I think I shall find it possible to look after myself as long as I can be heard but I at least want you to see that this house has an opportunity of listening to what I have to say without interruption."

HOUSE QUIETS DOWN

The house quieted down and Mr. King proceeded to take up the question by R. B. Hanson, Progressive Conservative, York-Sunbury, why Canada had not been represented at Dumbarton Oaks.

"For the same reason that some forty other nations were not represented there," said Mr. King. "Someone had to make a beginning and the beginning was made by the great powers." He asked whether any other group could have met with greater acceptance.

"Unless the great powers were able to agree among themselves on basic principles and proposals," he said, "I see no hope at all for any world organization."

"The fact that the five great powers have been able to sit down in conference and agree on proposals which are as broad as those which are now before us and suggest that they should be used as a basis for discussion of a charter to maintain peace after the termination of the war," he said, "was a matter of greatest satisfaction to all people of the world."

Mr. King recalled the initial Moscow conference in November, 1943, attended by representatives of the United States, the United Kingdom and Russia and subsequently China to take the first steps. The declaration of Moscow set forth that immediate steps should be taken for a beginning and it was the representatives of these powers that met at Dumbarton Oaks.

He had been asked why Canada had not been invited to go to Dumbarton Oaks as if we had not gone there because we had not been invited. That was a very good reason why Canada had not been there but it was no reflection on Canada, no more than on Belgium, Holland, Brazil or any other country.

"TOO MANY COOKS"

"Too many cooks sometimes spoil the broth."

"Even at Dumbarton Oaks complete agreement was not obtained. Some matters were considered at Yalta where Canada was not invited but neither were Australia, New Zealand, nor South Africa, nor any of the other United Nations except the great powers.

"At Yalta, the great powers were able to reach an agreement to call the great conference of all the powers. Now Canada is presented with this agreement looking toward the establishment of the world organization.

"I would say," said the prime minister, "that nothing could be more fortunate than the fact that what would be the most difficult of all steps to obtain—complete agreement among the great powers in the world—has already been attained. Surely after all, lesser countries or the other powers, by whatever name you wish to call them, will be glad and ought to be ready to co-operate in every way with the great powers in bringing the charter into a form which will make it commendable."

Answering another question by Mr. Hanson, the prime minister said that "of course preservation of peace depends on the great powers."

"But that does not mean," went on Mr. King, "that the likelihood of the great powers being kept in agreement will not be very much increased by all of them becoming members of a great world organization and assuming certain obligations in that organization. That is what this particular treaty will do.

SUBSCRIBE TO CHARTER

"It will pledge every member of the organization," proceeded the prime minister, "which will include all the great powers to subscribe to the charter, and all that is set out therein which will mean that not by mere chance, nor without any arrangement, these powers will deliberately meet and confer and continuously keep in touch with one another when dealing with questions of peace and war, once things have come to the danger point, but rather to deal with the causes which create war, and deal with them particularly before matters have reached an impasse in circumstances that might lead to war."

The Prime Minister said the organization will contribute in a large way to making agreements among the great powers perpetual and helping to make it most effective.

"Part of the work of the organization," he emphasized, "will be dealing with these questions of the possibility of war, and with the conditions that create war in a general assembly."

Mr. King went into considerable detail of the plans of precedure in the proposed general assembly of the United Nations, saying it would correspond in many ways to that of the Canadian House of Commons. The council, like the government, would be controlled by knowledge of the attitude of the members on the representative body.

GIVES EXPLANATION

The reason why a government minister had not been slated to go to the prior British Commonwealth meeting in London was because the minister of external affairs and the prime minister, one man, could not be in two places at once. The British government which extended the invitation has shown itself much more understanding, more courteous than the opposition who had insinuated that there was a special reason, "that the present prime minister is always seeking to pull away from closer contact with other parts of the British Commonwealth . . . repeated ad naseum."

"I would ask them," thundered the prime minister, "to tell me one time in the whole of my life when I have not stood first and foremost with every member of the British Commonwealth in furthering our common interests. They expect a man," he said, "to take a great responsibility; to act as the head of a delegation, to a great world conference, and before he starts off they do all in their power to render him ineffective in whatever he attempts to do; seeking to spread the impression that, if I lead the delegation to San Francisco, in some way I shall be sulking in the corner all the time I am there; not wishing to have contact with the other members of the British Commonwealth."

"And that," declared Mr. King amid a storm of applause from the government benches, "after the part I have played as leader of the government of this country during five and one-half years of war."

The Prime Minister hinted an early election when he said the opposition will find out about this when the opportunity comes pretty soon. He was thankful for them to appear before the people.

Answering a question whether instruction had been given to delegates going over (to the London meeting) he said the government had been discussing the questions involved over a year with the British government.

PERSONAL DISCUSSION

He had personally sat in with the British prime minister and discussed the world organization and the position to be taken by representatives of the different commonwealths — exchanging communications back and forth during the last year; getting the opinions of different parts of the Commonwealth of the British government, and giving our opinions," he said.

"We shall be represented at the London meetings," he went on "by Mr. Massey, high commissioner for Canada, who is a member of the Canadian privy council and has seen all the communications. . . . We shall be represented also by Mr. Hume Wrong, associate under-secretary of state for external affairs, who, more than any other man in this country, has from the beginning to this hour followed every move in connection with the formation of this world organization so far as it has been humanly possible for any man to do it.

"Mr. Wrong has been present at meetings of the cabinet when we have been discussing these matters. We have benefitted by his experts opinions, and he has a full knowledge of our attitude. He does not need any special instructions to take to London at the present time; he knows our mind and will be able to present it fully. I may add that he will be able day by day to keep us informed by cable and we can keep in touch with him, as regards any question which may arise, in a similar way."

MAINTAIN CLOSE TOUCH

The Prime Minister also emphasized how continuously Canada had kept in touch with other members of the Commonwealth on the subject. Canada has also communicated to all of the great powers the views which he had expressed in opening his speech; there has been the fullest disclosure. Canada had been informed of some amendments proposed by other countries but it was given in confidence.

"Governments," he said, "do not place every suggestion and view on the table for interpretations to be given in regard to it, and commitments made before finality is reached." An exchange of opinions and views, as full as possible is had, he said, and then they ultimately decide on what specific amendment, if any, may be presented.

"It was not the government's intention at present to suggest anything specific in the way of amendment," perhaps it might come after discussions with other Commonwealth representatives at San Francisco.

Mr. King said whatever amendments Canada offered, the government would take full responsibility for them. He said the delegation would be chosen in Canada exactly as it had been in the United Kingdom, and the United States, and so far as he knew, in other Commonwealths. . . . . The government would take the responsibility.

ELECTION MAY COME

Then Mr. King began speaking of the possibility of his heading the delegation in a manner to indicate an election may take place while the meeting is in progress. He said he deeply appreciated the assumption that he would go to San Francisco as the head of the delegation; the assumption that he would take full responsibility, "and, in the belief that it is the wish of this house that I should take it; I am prepared to go as the head of the delegation.

"I must says," he added, "however, that some regards must be taken for the circumstances in which I find myself; some reference has been made," he said, that he might be asked to accept a responsible position in the conference (chairman of conference) that was a compliment and an expression of confidence, which he valued highly.

"But even if such a possibility arose, I could not find it possible myself to accept a position of the kind."

Mr. King said he could not free himself from the responsibility of the prime minister of a country at war in which one had to give concentrated attention to public affairs.

"In going to San Francisco," he said, "I shall not be freeing myself

The Teacher's Salary

What salary a teacher should be paid is a perennial subject for argument between school boards and taxpayers on one hand and educationists on the other. The dividing line was drawn in the legislature, without regard to party, when the proposal came up to raise the minimum salary for a teacher in Alberta from $900 to $1,000 per year. Not, it is apparent, from a feeling that the new minimum is too high in comparison, but on the ground that taxpayers in many communities are not in position to pay more than at present.

The amount of money is not, however, the sole nor the chief consideration in relation to the pay of teachers. One way or another the money will have to be found to pay salaries not only in keeping with those in other occupations but enough higher than this average to keep competent instructors in the profession. Education is the only foundation for a progressive state, and the ultimate safeguard of democracy. Alberta cannot afford to provide its children with anything less than the best. And since the standard of teacher qualifications is being steadily raised, the rewards will have to go up also. A minimum of $1,200 per year would not be too high for teachers who have completed the lengthy and costly training period now necessary.

Closing Out

The British Commonwealth Air Training Plan will cease to function at the end of this week. Today final wings parades are being held at training stations across the Dominion, when the last groups of students will receive their Wings. Appropriate ceremonies mark these events—and incidentally the closing down of the great project.

The system is being wound up for the best of all possible reasons; it has finished its job. Its facilities are no longer required. There are now enough pilots and other crewmen available and in prospect to meet the needs, without continuing the schools.

From these schools some 130,000 trained men have gone into the air forces of the Allies. Half of them were Canadians. The others came here to train from other parts of the Empire and from many Allied countries. They are now in action over Europe, in Burma, perhaps elsewhere. The quality of the training they received is shown by what they have done and are doing. There are no better flyers, on any of the fighting fronts, than those who passed through the Commonwealth schools.

This great training system was Canadian in conception and Canada has borne the bulk of the cost. It represents a major war undertaking, and has made a contribution to the Allied fighting strength of which Canada will be forever proud. That the project is being wound up even before the enemy has surrendered in either theatre is proof of how successfully the Plan has been carried out.

—V—

Highways In Reverse

To the list of the mistakes of Hitler which are helping to his undoing add another—the system of super-highways which he built at great cost of time and money, leading from interior Germany to the West Wall.

He built these as military roads, over which to move armies and equipment for the invasion of France, and as part of the material set-up by which that country was to be held in everlasting subjection. But he couldn't make them one-way roads. They were and are just as good for eastbound traffic as for westbound.

Seven Allied armies are now rolling along these highways at some points, driving toward them at others, with gathering momentum.

The Fuehrer must be as anxious now to blow up his super-highways as he was to build them. But to wreck them would take far longer time than he is at all likely to be allowed. Particularly so if the roads were really built to the maximum standard of strength and durability that was intended and boasted.

It is to be hoped therefore that Adolf got value for the money he spent, that his architects knew their business and that the contractors and workmen did an honest job. The thicker the concrete and the better its quality, the more useful his super-highways will be to the Allies—and the worse for the gangsters who designed them.

We Haven't Too Much

Most Canadians will likely be surprised to learn from Hon. J. G. Gardiner that we eat more meat per head than do the people of the United States. This of course is not guess-work, but a calculation based on official records. It bears on the statement of a Senator at Washington that Canadians have more beef than they know what to do with. In point of fact we haven't, for stocks in storage are down as compared with supplies a year ago. And we are going to have to get along with less meat of all kinds during the coming year, though the officials do not think rationing will be necessary.

During 1944 Canada shipped 105,000,000 pounds of beef to Britain. This year we are to ship an estimated 250,000,000 pounds. That will go part way, but only part way, to make up the reduction in United States shipments to the old lands. Whether in addition Canada can do much or anything to relieve the shortage across the line is doubtful, because to meet the heavier oversea export we will have to cut home consumption eight or ten pounds per head of population. An added factor is that hog production has dropped, and steaks will have to replace bacon noticeably on the Canadian menu.

The Senator who pictured Canada as a land where tables groan under juicy roasts and fat cattle wander in every glade was using high colors. Alas, it just isn't that rosy.

—V—

The Canadian 1st, British 2nd, and U.S. 9th Armies, at the north end of the Allied line, stood on the direct road to Berlin. Across the Rhine lay the great Ruhr industrial area. Naturally the enemy massed men and armor on that sector. The breakthrough there is particularly important for these reasons, and also because in their advance these Allied forces are outflanking the Nazis in eastern Holland. These have the choice of getting out fast or being caught in a pocket and liquidated at convenience.

—V—

When a country does right there is no need to question its motives. The Argentine cabinet has boxed the compass for more than three years, for whatever reasons, but finally wound up be declaring war on the Axis. As likely as not the immediate result may be a rebellion, perhaps a revolution. There are large German and Italian colonies in Argentina, and the Nazi spies routed out of other countries in the two western continents have found asylum there. If these do not start a revolt it will probably be because they know the war is lost and they could accomplish nothing more than get themselves shot or lodged in jail.

Canadians Can Speak for Canada and Only Canada

Too Many Instances of Dual Loyalty in This Country

BY HAROLD L. WEIR

The proposal made before the Canadian House of Commons by Anthony Hlynka, member of parliament for Vegreville, will leave most Canadians agape with amazement.

Mr. Hlynka, I hasten to say, has always shown signs of being a responsible Canadian. He has appeared to be a sound citizen. And he has given his constituency conscientious and alert representation.

Harold L. Weir

That is why his statement in the House is all the more astonishing and why it arouses all the more uneasiness and distress among those who had not looked for such sentiments from himself and his countrymen.

Mr. Hlynka's proposal is briefly this:

That since Russia will not present the Ukrainian problem at the San Francisco conference as it should be presented, and since there is no other voice to speak for the allegedly "oppressed' peoples of the Ukraine, the Ukrainian societies of Canada should be invited to the conference to present the case of the Ukrainian people who are now unable to present their own.

This suggestion is preposterous in itself. It becomes increasingly preposterous as one remembers that it was made by Mr. Hlynka in the course of an address in defence of sovereignty.

Mr. Hlynka was speaking with warmth and vigor about the danger of nations surrendering their sovereignty to the might and influence of dominant world powers. He said:

"The concept of sovereignty, in my opinion, is still the only real security for freedom so long as more powerful nations retain their own sovereignty."

And then he introduced his proposal that the Ukrainian societies of Canada should speak for the Ukraine at San Francisco.

How can he reconcile his defence of sovereignty with this outrageous demand that Russian sovereignty should be invaded?

For certainly such an action would be a tremendous invasion of Soviet sovereignty. And, moreover, it would be an equally vicious invasion of Ukrainian sovereignty because who can say that a group of people who voluntarily turned their backs upon the Ukraine to settle in Canada could adequately or intelligently represent the views of those who now live in the Ukraine?

It is to be hoped that the House of Commons will repudiate this weird proposal in unmistakable terms. For to entertain it for even a moment is to offer an unwarranted affront to a powerful ally to whom Canada owes much.

Many will agree with Mr. Hlynka that it is not true that "Russia alone saved us." Surely it must be admitted that if Russia's resistance to Hitler saved western civilization, it is equally true that Britain's resistance and Canada's resistance to Hitler also saved Russia. In a war of so many factors, it would be stupid to point to one or two and say they are the only ones which matter.

So far, Mr. Hlynka is probably quite right.

It is his privilege also to entertain in private and to exploit publicly, as far as the laws of the country will allow him, any personal dislike for Russia he chooses to cherish. Probably there are a great many Canadians of various racial origins who do not care much for Russia and for Russia's form of government. Each is entitled to his own opinion in that respect.

But it is another matter entirely to arise under parliamentary immunity and seek to embroil this country's government with an ally whose aid it would be suicide to reject.

Canada is still fighting for her life. It comes perilously close to disloyalty to play with ideas that might even yet imperil her security.

Mr. Hlynka's proposal is not only an invasion of Russian sovereignty and Ukrainian sovereignty but an outrage upon Canadian sovereignty as well.

For sovereignty not only implies the privilege of governing one's own affairs, but also the duty of leaving other people's affairs alone.

The conquistadorial nation, for instance, defiles its own sovereignty by attacking the sovereignty of others. Anything that degrades the principle of national sovereignty degrades and debauches all national sovereignty, just as no man can deprive another person of freedom without losing some of his own.

Mr. Hlynka would put Canada into an impossible position. For if Canadian Ukrainian societies should go to San Francisco to present the claims of the Ukraine, what is the matter with some fanatic group of Petainist sympathizers going to San Francisco to present the views of Vichy or with some isolationist Irish society in this country (if one could be found) going to San Francisco to present the views of De Valera?

The thing is simply unspeakable.

But the constitutional error of Mr. Hlynka is the smallest part of his offence.

What irritates and astonishes Canadians most is that a man of his intelligence and integrity should publicly exhibit a dual loyalty that is intolerable in Canada.

This country has welcomed settlers from all parts of Europe and has given them security and an opportunity to achieve an unusually high standard of living. It has educated their children and accorded them a position of partnership in the freest democracy of the world.

Only one thing is required of them—to be loyal and law-abiding Canadians.

No one can be a loyal and law-abiding Canadian who looks back with regret to the country of his birth or descent. No one expects foreign-born Canadians to abandon all love for the lands of their birth. But one does expect them to refrain from fighting the battles of those lands.

A man who divides his loyalty between two countries has precious little to give to either.

And it might just as well be made perfectly clear that no man will be tolerated in this country who insists upon making our Canadian soil the battleground for all the ancient hatreds and animosities and grudges of continental Europe.

This is Canada—no hyphen.

Round Tables Gaining in Favor

Can See Everyone Without Having to Crane Around Your Neighbors

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

Did you know that round tables are coming into focus again? and not simply because the Big Three conference pictures from Yalta spotlighted the round table either.

Perhaps one of the main reasons why the round table is back in favor is because it is so good for round-table discussions. For one thing, everybody can see everybody else at a round table without having to crane around neighbors.

So look for more roun' tables to turn up in smart interiors—in dining rooms, of course, but also in living rooms. In those combination living-dining rooms that will be seen in many postwar homes. It will be genial for games, for lessons, for spreading out the evening papers or cutting a pattern from a length of material.

This kind of a table is nice for casual refreshments too—the men will welcome it with particular warmth, for they never did like to dangle cups and saucers on the knees. With a round table for serving they'll draw up their chairs and join in the tea talk with gusto.

Look also for a revival of the idea of the library table—for the home that has a separate dining room anyway. For the library table fulfills many purposes—it makes a good desk for the family, and a very pleasant place to sit and read. It won't absolutely have to be round in the new day that's dawning, but it probably will be much of the time.

Today's yearning for the sumptuous decoration of the late Renaissance is evidenced even by the unprecedented demand for intricately carved occasional tables. There is an extensive collection of these in local stores.

There you will find tables of every description, from coffee types, to lamp tables, sewing and curio cabinets. Shapes range from round, rectangular, and oval, to the half moon and kidney shaped styles.

Useful nests of tables which fit so beautifully in a little space are difficult to find, but there are a few in either plain or carved varieties.

Lamp tables with more size and importance are also available. Many people like space for a book, an ash-tray or a clock. Besides with bigger lamps, popular not only because they are better proportioned but also because they provide better illumination, larger tables will be needed to keep the ensemble in scale.

There are many end tables in mahogany or walnut, some with steps of two or three tiers for additional space and convenience. Small cabinets, either carved or unadorned, also serve as occasional tables.

Elegant simplicity distinguishes a round occasional table in dark mahogany with four graceful legs and a decorative wooden edging that stands up slightly, forming a border around the top.

If you can imagine "packaged rooms" artistically co-ordinated as to furniture, color scheme, fabric and decorative accessories and sold as complete units, you have a mental picture of one post-war improvement.

Packaging of this sort will bring the beauty of topnotch interior decoration within the range of everyone.

Freda Diamond is the dynamic young home furnishings designer who has introduced this idea. She is planning it primarily for the returned serviceman and his family, many of whom will start out with empty apartments when the war is over.

In planning a unit Miss Diamond begins by discovering the limitation of price range that she must work with. No matter how low the bracket may be she refuses to compromise style and attractiveness, for she has a strong faith in the average woman's good taste.

After designing the furniture, she starts the intricate process of coordinating fabrics and color. In working out a room with blue as its keynote, for instance, she goes to each manufacturer to see that the particular shade of blue in the rug, draperies or accessory will blend.

Miss Diamond does not believe in too much matching in rooms. If the factory does not have the correct material, she sits down and designs her own.

At the finish the products will be assembled and sold to department stores all over the country. Her packaged homes will be available in two different period styles—modern and early Colonial—as soon as the war is over.

No Libel

LONDON DAILY MAIL

A judge at Bristol held that the omission of "Mr." from a name in a newspaper report was not defamatory.

He gave judgment, with costs, for the Bath and Wiltshire Chronicle and Herald in a libel action brought by a man who complained that in a report his name was used without Mr.

Dispatches from the Far East indicate the terms upon which peace between Japan and China is likely to be based, assuming that China will agree to them. One condition is the permanent cession to Japan of the Island of Formosa. The claim of China that Corea is a dependency of that country is to be relinquished and Corea is to be made independent. The Japanese are to be continued in the right to occupy the two important naval stations captured by her forces, Port Arthur and Wei-hei-wei. Japan is to be granted extra territorial jurisdiction in China. There is to be no extension of Japanese territory on the mainland, but China is required to pay a heavy cash indemnity, amounting, it is said, to more than $150,000,000 in gold. The Bretton Woods Decision

By B. T. RICHARDSON

WASHINGTON: The feeling that Congress is going to take its time and scrutinize closely each detail in the Bretton Woods proposals for a new world bank and an international currency stabilization fund pervaded Capitol Hill as hearings opened into the scheme. The legislation, requiring approval in house and senate and slated for committee hearings in both houses, may take several weeks to reach the final stage.

Representing the world's most comprehensive scheme of economic disarmament ever attempted, the combined world bank and fund faces a long and controversial passage here in which its full force and effect may well be determined by efforts to revise or modify the legislation and the extent to which such efforts are successful.

Forty-four nations shared in preparation of the Bretton Woods plan. The others are frankly waiting to see what the United States Congress does with it, for no one doubts that without the United States, the scheme will not work effectively. The moment the European war ends, the great issue in international economic relations will be whether or not the nations which have suffered extensively can rely on international assistance in reconstruction and development, or whether they must revert to the forms of economic warfare that characterized the cut-throat era of world relations before the war, in their own self-defence. Thus the opportunity exists now, and whether or not the world seizes it will depend on majority votes in the house and senate of the United States in the next few weeks.

This issue, in the view of observers here, is equally as important as that of military and political disarmament which will be embodied in the charter to be drafted at the San Francisco conference and in the documents of the future world peace conference. As a guide to the controversy which will undoubtedly rage here in coming weeks, the answer to what the United States will get out of Bretton Woods will serve equally for Canada as well. Both are countries depending, in different degree, on world trade for their high standard of living and for a continued high level of employment. The main argument for the Bretton Woods scheme, as it is given here, is that it means economic disarmament in the world. It means that signatory countries will make four major commitments that

(1) they will define their currencies in terms of gold; (2) stabilize their currencies within a range of one per cent; (3) avoid currency restrictions and permit freedom of current transactions; and (4) alter their currency values, if that is necessary, by consultation, agreeing to make only one change within 10 per cent except with the approval of the world fund.

The proposed fund will have resources of $8.8 billions (U.S. dollars) and the U.S.A. subscription will be $2.75 billions. Canada's will be $300 millions. The proposed bank will have subscribed capital of $9.1 billions, with the U.S.A., the largest stockholder, subscribing $3.175 billions. Canada's subscription will be $325 millions. In the case of the fund, subscriptions are 25 per cent in gold, the rest in national currency. In the case of the bank, 20 per cent of the subscription must be paid, the rest being on call.

What a member-nation gets out of the fund is the right to obtain a quota of currency. Neither Canada nor the United States are likely to be "borrowers" at once, but many other countries will want Canadian and American dollars right away in order to buy in those countries the goods and equipment needed for reconstruction. The only other way for them to obtain foreign exchange balances will be, in many cases, to resume the devices of economic warfare, of exchange control, of export control, of barring imports, and so on, with which they struggled to protect their economies in the depression and in the years when nations were preparing for war.

By its action, the United States Congress will determine whether or not the United States is prepared to support world collaboration in economic affairs. Nearly three years of negotiation have gone into the Bretton Woods plan, and if it is radically altered in Washington, the opportunity of agreement among the major nations will have to be referred to other world conferences, perhaps to a series of them. The point that it is now or probably never, is being stressed in Washington.

Signs of opposition within the United States are plentiful, though there is plainly much support. The American Bankers' Association, for instance, through a committee report, objected to the fund, but favored the bank. Its case was that the bank alone should be established. The answer to this argument is that currency stabilization, as proposed by the fund, is essential both to the flow of private capital abroad and to the expansion of foreign trade. In short, the alternative to stabilization is a return to economic warfare. If the fund is established, the nations will surrender the right to unilateral competitive currency action; if not, they will resume it. That is the issue, as briefly as it can be stated.

Further Criticisms of Council

By GRANT DEXTER

It has been shown that the proposed Security Council is being severely criticized as a grand alliance of the Great Powers: that it is only a new form of balance of power and, therefore, will inevitably fail. In reply, it is argued that the world organization can only succeed if the Great Powers act together. There is no power, it is said, great enough to coerce any one of the Titan powers of today. At that point the world organization would collapse and World War III would begin.

The proposed Council, however, is being subjected to a second criticism. As has been shown, the Dumbarton Oaks charter differs from the Covenant in not laying down clear rules of conduct and of procedure. There are no territorial guarantees this time. The act of aggression is not defined. No conditions are set up which, automatically, would bring the members of the world organization into conflict with a law-breaker. The proposed Security Council controlled largely by the Great Powers through their individual right of veto, is given a general assignment to maintain peace and the freest hand in going about it. The Council will make its own rules, and there is no appeal.

This being so, it is argued that the Security Council could become the perfect instrument of appeasement. It could be fitted perfectly into the record of 1931-1939 and could have been used to do all that was done to appease Japan, Italy and Germany, with Spain thrown in for good measure. It is not obliged to concern itself with the merits of the case, or if a dispute is ever settled. It is not obliged to coerce an aggressor or to stand by a victim of aggression.

The duty of the Council is to decide on measures to restore or to maintain peace. It could apply pressure on the weaker party. Like the appeasers of the '30's, it could argue that the important thing was to avoid a clash and that to coerce the aggressor would do just that. It could, indeed, buy off the aggressor just as was done prior to 1930.

In a legalistic way these criticisms are well based. The Council is unrestricted. None of the guarantees of the Covenant such as Article 10, which guaranteed the territory of each member, appear in the new charter. Indeed, it is clear that perfectionists everywhere are greatly cast down and inclined to oppose the new charter. Old and well-tried League men in the United States are horrified by the proposition to place the guardianship of peace in the hands of the Great Powers.

But while it is not possible to confound these critics by appeal to the text of the charter, the great majority of public men and other leaders of opinion have not been shaken in their support of Dumbarton Oaks. This, for example is particularly true of the League of Nations membership in the United Kingdom and in Canada—less true of the League advocates in the United States. Leaders like Lord Cecil, Gilbert Murray, Lord Lytton, are ardently backing Dumbarton Oaks. They are doing so not on grounds of perfection but, as Lord Cecil said:

"Though there are imperfections in it, as there must be about every human scheme, broadly speaking it is on the right lines. I support Dumbarton Oaks and, like Oliver Twist, ask for improvements".

From a practical, and not a legalistic or theoretical viewpoint, the restriction of the veto right to the Great Powers is regarded as a great improvement over the old League. Then, every member, great or small, had the right of veto. Today, only five possess it. Moreover, as the British White Paper points out, the rules set up in the Covenant tended to prevent action. They gave play to every hair-splitter.

Form does not guarantee results. The most perfect charter will not function of itself. Pieces of paper, however grandly inscribed with principles, will not maintain peace. The trouble with the Covenant, it is said, was that the people of the world actually deluded themselves into thinking that no power was needed: that Article this or the other would inevitably apply to any future peril and automatically bring about the desired result. As the Manchester Guardian put it:

"The League could not have succeeded if it had had no defects, unless the governments of Europe had been ready to carry out their obligations".

The present war, it is agreed, could have been prevented if the members of the old League had been prepared to back the Covenant with force. There is substantial agreement with the Churchill statement:

"The war could easily have been prevented if the League of Nations had been used with courage and loyalty of the associated nations".

Nor will the new organization fare better if the members are not prepared to put their power behind it. In a word, the determination to act is of much greater importance than the phrasing of the charter.

There is one point of criticism with regard to the Great Powers and the Council, which is being advanced by supporters of the charter and which has not been met. It is this: there is no provision in the text for a future reassessment of power. It is assumed that the relative superiority of the present Big Five will remain constant. This is regarded as a weakness. The law of life, it is argued is mutability and the Security Council, like everything else, will be subject to it. From this standpoint, it is felt that periodic revisions should be provided for in the charter.

Racket

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

The authorities of Lincolnshire, England, have had to learn the hard way. It seems that in an anti-rat crusade 90,000 rat tails were turned in for the bounty, which required an expenditure of about $2,200.

But as wiser heads might have told them earlier, the bounty system makes for abuses. Some of the racketeers, seeking the bonus, bred rats by the thousands in special cages. The bounty has been withdrawn. The rat breeders resorted to one of the oldest of all racketeering devices. Only a year or so ago, in one of our own western states, trouble arose when it was discovered that greedy cowhands were raising coyotes just to get the bounty.

The trouble, in one form or another, doubtless existed in the days of the Pharaohs, and before. A sure way to bring out the inherent cussedness of the human race is to offer a reward, or a bounty, or a bonus for something—almost anything.

McCoy Health Service

The person who has been working sitting down and who has developed the general sluggishness, poor circulation, and feeling of growing old which are common consequences of such work, will find that exercise is one of the most valuable of all the remedies he has at his disposal.

Such a person will find the increase in health, endurance, and general vitality he is capable of deserving from regular exercise, to be almost miraculous.

When your work keeps you sitting, I therefore suggest that you try exercise. I do not know of anything else which will do as much for you in the way of giving you that feeling of "being up on your toes" and ready to roll up your sleeves and pitch in and enjoy life.

When the average individual thinks of exercise, he generally thinks of those taken while standing and calling for movements of the legs and arms. These are good in their way, but are not the most essential, and do not pay the greatest dividends in the form of increased health and strength. Exercises which build up the muscles of the abdomen and back are of greater value.

A good development of the important abdominal muscles will frequently produce a physical betterment which is remarkable. Such development will be found to induce a great increase in endurance and vitality, at the same time that it helps to prevent constipation. For vitality, good elimination, and general all-around endurance, put in your time on special exercises which flatten the lower abdomen and tone up the trunk muscles. Those who wish to reduce the hips and lower abdomen will find these exercises of special benefit in "stream-lining" their figures.

It is also of value to develop the muscles of the back, which you wish to stay in good condition and to enjoy an abundance of health.

When you first take up an exercise program, you will probably find the first two or three weeks are the hardest. After you get into the habit of exercising with regularity and once you begin to enjoy the increased health which is sure to come, you will find that it is necessary to expend very little effort. After you get into condition, for example, an exercise period three times a week should keep you feeling on hundred per cent fit, or you may achieve the same result by exercising for about fifteen minutes each day. Physical culture exercises seem to be of remarkable assistance in building up energy and I would not bring this subject to your attention unless I thought it worthy of your consideration.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Mine Holiday Move Defeated In Legislature

Efforts to have two weeks' holiday with pay made a statutory provision of the new Alberta Coal Mines Regulation Act were defeated in the legislature Wednesday, when the house in committee of the whole was studying provisions of the mines legislation.

The holiday-with-pay question was brought up by Gordon E. Taylor (SC, Drumheller), who moved an amendment to the act which called for two weeks' holiday with pay for miners who had worked for more than a year at a mine. The amendment was declared lost on a standing vote.

COMMISSION AWARD

The Taylor amendment, if passed, would have carried into the post-war period the holiday-with-pay award of the recent O'Connor Royal Commission. The commission award is regarded as "for the duration" only.

Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, who brought the new mines act into the legislature, opposed Mr. Taylor's amendment. He said this question should be dealt with by the department of trade and industry.

Mr. Taylor, calling for support for his amendment, said a stride ahead has been taken, and it should be retained.

Hon. C. E. Gerhart, minister of trade and industry, told committee members the question of annual holidays with pay for coal miners could be dealt with by the Board of Industrial Relations. Any board decision could be confirmed by an order-in-council.

AMENDMENT RE-DRAFTED

The holiday amendment was redrafted to make it clear it would apply only to miners who had been on the job over a year. The basis used was one day's holiday for each month of employment. Mr. Tanner had pointed out the original amendment would have the effect of giving a full two weeks holiday with pay to miners who had worked no longer than two or three weeks.

E. E. Roper (CCF-Edmonton) declared the miners themselves want the holiday-with-pay provision inserted in the act. "If this can be done while we are here, then let us do it", he said. Flt.-Lt. A. J. E. Liesemer (CCF-Calgary) also supported the amendment.

W. J. Williams (Vets.-Edmonton) doubted any coal mines will be working full time after the war is over. He suggested Albertans were inclined to turn to the use of gas, rather than face the prospect of further mine strikes.

STANDING VOTE

A standing vote of the committee, taken by James Hartley (SC-Macleod), chairman, revealed the amendment to be lost. Hon. A. J. Hooke, provincial secretary, was the only cabinet minister to vote in support.

Discussion on the legislation will be resumed next week, when the assembly reconvenes after the Easter recess.

Reveal Pasvolsky Going to Parley As U.S. Adviser

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(CP)—Leo Pasvolsky, special assistant to the secretary of state in charge of international organization and security affairs, will attend the San Francisco security conference as one of the chief advisers of the United States delegation it was learned at Washington. Questions were asked in the Canadian House of Commons yesterday regarding his attendance at San Francisco. Mr. Pasvolsky, a native of Pavlograd, Russia, has headed a special committee on post-war problems which has been working for more than two years on the Dumbarton Oaks security plan.

Seek Labor Peace In United States

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP)—A signed agreement to strive for labor peace in the United States when the war's end brings fewer jobs and lower production was announced yesterday by leaders of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, American Federation of Labor and United States Chamber of Commerce. The ambitionus "new charter for labor management," as it was titled, lined the business group up for post-war recognition of "the fundamental rights of labor to organize and to engage in collective bargaining."

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean
SPORTS EDITOR

WITH Yanks, Signallers, Dodgers and Arrows, the same four clubs which comprised the senior circuit in '44, all set to go again, and two others—Namao Air Base and U.S. Hospital—on the waiting list, it looks as if Edmonton's baseball season for 1945 just can't miss.

Aircraft Repair combined with Chicago Quartermasters for the fifth entry last year, but after playing two games amalgamated with U.S. Signals and the four-club loop was a natural from the start.

The revised schedule in '44 provided for a total of 48 games which meant 24 for each club, in addition to exhibition affairs and playoffs. There were four fixtures at Renfrew Park each week, game days being Sundays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays— just about an ideal setup for four teams.

Namao Air Base and U.S. Hospital are seeking franchises and their applications will be disposed of next Thursday. Presumably both must have considerable ball talent, but in the event of the league again being limited to four teams, no doubt most of the players could be absorbed by the other clubs. In view of last year's experience, four games a week appears to be a maximum from the attendance standpoint.

All-told there were 70 games played in Renfrew Park in 1944 and it will be recalled the weather blacked out the post-season series here for the Alberta title between Calgary and Edmonton winners. The schedule opened May 21 and the last of league finals was on Sept. 12, but an exhibition to boost Junior ball was played Sept. 24.

HERE AND THERE

EDDIE CUTTS, the Edmonton boy with Montreal Royals juniors, is billed for a trial with Toronto Maple Leafs. "Squib" Walker, Leaf scout, also is interested in George York and Leo Curik of Porcupine Combines who were eliminated by St. Michael's College last night.

York, a defenceman, is six-foot-one and weights 180, while Curik is a husky defenceman. Cutts also is a big fellow. He played juvenile hockey here, but he also turned out with Edmonton's junior football Combines for a couple of games last fall, prior to returning to Montreal.

Moose Jaw starts the western junior final against Winnipeg and wails regarding injuries are still coming from the Canuck camp. Couture should be a big help to the Saskatchewan team, although he has been out of hockey for some time. Everybody spoke very highly of Defenceman Swaine, out with an elbow injury.

Butler looked like a million dollars in the first game against Edmonton Canadians here, but he was not so troublesome in the second and was stopped cold in the third. Ashworth wore better than Butler who did not take very kindly to the heavy going, but Marquess was their best consistent goal-producer. If Couture can be worked in with Ashworth and Marquess, the combination could be more potent than the Canuck's regular trio.

Couture might be more valuable on defence for Moose Jaw and that is where he'll probably land if Butler gets back in the series. Nattrass is a fine defenceman, much superior to either Olmstead or Belbin, although Olmstead has a handy poke check. Paddy Ryan, the Regina Commando recruit, will not be much help on defence. The pace set in the Canadian-Canuck series certainly was much too fast for the Reginan.

Yanks, Signals, Dodgers, Arrows Certain Starters; Two Seek Franchises

At Least 4 Clubs in Senior Ball League

Dave Little President This Year

YANKS, U.S. Signallers, Dodgers and Arrows are certain starters in the Edmonton Senior Baseball League again this season, it was disclosed at the re-organization meeting held on Wednesday night. Namao Air Base and U.S. Hospital also have applied for franchises and their applications will be dealt with at a meeting called for next Thursday.

Dave Little, vice-president last year was named president of the league for 1945 and Ken Henry was elected vice-president. William G. (Bill) Harris was again unanimously chosen as secretary-treasurer.

The league was made up of four teams in 1944, the Yanks winning the post-schedule playoff with Signallers, who had eliminated Dodgers in the semi-final series. Arrows were the fourth club and all are ready to go again this season.

Quite an extensive improvement program is planned for Renfrew Park, city-owned baseball field this year, with painting, rebuilding of bleachers and general repair work the main items.

No action was taken last night in connection with naming of the opening date. The exact makeup of the circuit will be determined at the meeting next Thursday and Secretary Harris will then be asked to draft a tentative schedule for submission to the various clubs. The first game in 1944 was played on May 21.

Dave Little, new president of the league has been a member of the Edmonton Baseball Commission for some time. He succeeds George Mackintosh, who headed the league for several years.

A total of 16 attended Wednesday's meeting. Capt. Ray Argo represented the twice - champion Yanks, while Capt. Clarence Archer was spokesman for U.S. Signals. Bud Corcoran represented the Dodgers and Bill Bull the Arrows.

TORONTO, March 29.—(CP)—The Alberta horsemen's plan to curb illegal wagering has fallen through. The other day, the provincial legislature's private bills committee killed a proposed bill to incorporate the Prairie Association Limited.

The association had been formed by horsemen in the province with the idea of eliminating the tremendous business done by bookmakers. Their plan was to set up betting offices—on the pari-mutuel style—in downtown Edmonton and Calgary during the time that race meetings were going on in those cities.

But they never got a chance to function, for the bill of incorporation was swept by the wayside—and nary a tear was shed, judging by the fact that the public and press barely commented on the bill's premature death.

Now illegal wagering will carry on as strongly as ever in Alberta—much to the disgust of horsemen—and the provincial coffers have been done out of a small fortune yearly from revenue that would have been derived through the extra pari-mutuel betting.

Disappearing Act:

A couple of lacrosse enthusiasts were gathered about the proverbial hot-stove the other day when someone got to talking about the gone-but-not-forgotten National Lacrosse Union.

Among the hot-stovers was none other than Charlie Querrie, renowned as the starry player-manager of the Toronto Tecumsehs in the NLU. When the question of what had become of the Loi Solman trophy, emblematic of the NLU title, Charlie recalled this story.

It seems that somewhere near the end of the NLU's life, Cornwall won the loop championship and Joe Lally asked Charlie to ship the trophy to Cornwall for the team banquet. Charlie said he went to the place in Toronto where the cup was stored and asked that it be shipped to Cornwall immediately.

"When they opened the box at Cornwall," Querrie said, "there was nothing in it. I got blamed for everything—including pawning the trophy."

"As a matter of fact, we still don't know where it is."

$64 question:

Out in Vancouver they can't figure out who won the senior English rugby championship. University of British Columbia and Victoria Naval Cadets played in the final, with Cadets being defending champions. But since service regulations do not permit a service team to play against a civilian squad for a championship, the Cadets claim they had not performed for the Cup or title.

The Varsity fifteen trounced the sailors, but don't know if or how they get the Rounsefell Cup. That is, if they are supposed to get it.

Teams Move to Montreal

Toronto Fans Still Talking About Fourth Tilt of Series

TORONTO, March 29.—(CP)—Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs have gone to Montreal for resumption tonight of their eight point Stanley Cup semi-final series but attention here still centres on Tuesday night's contest.

Leafs won that one 4-3 in overtime to take a 6-2 lead in the series and need only one more victory to advance into the finals against either Detroit Red Wings or Boston Bruins, tied 4-4 in the other semi-final.

Toronto fans say they will remember for a long time the stirring display of goaltending by Montreal's Bill Durnan, 1944-45 Vezina trophy winner, who almost single handed stood off Leafs for 50 minutes of the game after his defence collapsed. And then there was Gus Bodnar's startling shot that caught the top right-hand corner from a face-off in the Montreal zone and ended the game after 12 minutes overtime.

Durnan stopped 56 shots compared with 25 by rookie Frank McCool, winner of the Calder Trophy as the best rookie in the National Hockey League this season.

No injuries were reported by either club following Tuesday night's contest.

DETROIT FANS PREPARE TO WELCOME WINGS BACK

DETROIT, March 29.—(CP)—Detroit hockey fans, some of whom never expected to see their NHL team in action again this season, last night prepared to welcome the Red Wings back to town after a successful invasion of Boston which tied their Stanley Cup semi-final series with the Bruins at two games apiece.

After suffering two straight defeats here, the Wings invaded Boston and hung two successive 3-2 victories on the Bruins. The teams meet here again tonight.

The Wings expect to ice their regular lineup, including Syd Howe, high-scoring centre who was unable to play at Boston because of injuries suffered in the second game of the series here.

Bruins, however, will be without Gino Rozzini, who was injured at Boston Tuesday night.

St. Mike's Takes All Ontario Title

TORONTO, March 29.—(CP)—St. Michael's Majors last night rode to a 12-3 victory against Porcupine Combines to capture the Ontario junior hockey championship in three straight games. Majors won the first two games 12-3 and 8-6.

Tod Sloan, another three-goal producer for Majors, Johnny Blute, with two, and Johnny McCormack, Bill Turick, Bob Paul and Bill Gray accounted for the St. Michael's goals. Barry Sullivan, Curick and Casanato scored for the northern champions.

Avenue Curlers Meet April 5th

The annual meeting of the Alberta Avenue Curling Club will be held in the club rooms on Thursday, April 5 at 8 o'clock. Reports of the season's activities will be presented and other important business items will come up. The election of officers for the coming year will be one of the main items. All members are requested to attend this meeting.

A dance of the club will be held April 12 at the Masonic Temple at 9 o'clock to climax the 1944-45 season.

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N.Y., March 29.—(AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday sold Whitlow Wyatt, 36, veteran right-handed pitcher, to Philadelphia Phillies. The price was believed to be $10,000.

Monarchs Leave for Opener

Western Junior Hockey Final Starts at Moose Jaw Tonight

Christy - Thiede For Main Bout Saturday Night

Four bouts are listed for Saturday night's wrestling show at the Empire Theatre, the first of two preliminaries to commence at 8:30 o'clock.

"Bad Man" Ted Christy from Hollywood and Portland's Cliff Thiede are slated for the final match of the evening's card. These two are evenly weighted.

Christy is a master in the art of riling the customers and getting into the hair of his opponent at the same time, but it is anticipatetd he will have plenty of grief with Thiede, who comes highly rated in the grab-as-grab-can game.

Chief Thunderbird, another colorful showman and one of the top attractions in wrestling today, will have Lee Grable, Los Angeles grappler as opposition in the semi-windup. Grable has been well liked by the fans in his previous Edmonton appearances.

Maurice De Blieck has been matched with "Indian Joe" Jacobs, from Sarcee for one preliminary, while Promoter George Girvin has not yet named an opponent for Emil Van Velzen for the other.

Cecil (Tiger) Goldstick and Wally Beaumont will referee the bouts.

Y. Toilers Seek Alberta Crown

YMCA Toilers, coached by Armour Bull, will be seeking their second straight provincial junior basketball championship next Tuesday night when they meet Calgary East End Recreation Club in the opener of a two-game, total-points final at Calgary.

Second game will likely be played at Westglen gym April 21.

Making the trip along with the coach and manager Vic Argent will be 28 boys. Prior to the game in Calgary they will attend a two-day conference at Lethbridge Saturday and Sunday. The group will leave here Friday morning.

Nine Rural Teams Playoff at 'Peg

WINNIPEG, March 29.—(CP)—Hockey in rural Manitoba is said to be a dead duck, but if it is, it's one that won't lie down.

Proof of this is shown in the fact that nine country teams will perform at the Amphitheatre rink here this week in provincial finals ranging from the intermediate down to bantam.

Teams will represent Selkirk, Foxwarren, Teulon, Portage La Prairie, Brandon, Somerset and Swan Lake.

Finals are being played in Winnipeg because an early spring has melted ice in rural centres.

Ontario Senior

HAMILTON, Ont., March 29.—(CP)—Frood Open Pit of Sudbury last night turned back Hamilton Majors 3-1 to tie their best of seven series for the Ontario senior championship 3-3. Deciding game will be played here Friday.

'Toba Junior "B"

WINNIPEG, March 29.—(CP)—Foxwarren juniors won the Manitoba junior "B" hockey championship last night by defeating Teulon 5-4 in overtime in the sudden-death final.

WINNIPEG, March 29.—(CP)—Winnipeg Monarchs, with 14 players, coach Art Barnett, manager Pay Lyon, trainer Ed Haverstock and president Floyd Howe, left last night for Moose Jaw to meet Moose Jaw Canucks in the best-of-seven western Canada junior hockey finals.

The teams battle tonight with the second game in Moose Jaw Saturday and the third, if the teams split points in the two encounters, at Regina next Tuesday night. Remaining games of the series will be in Winnipeg.

Monarchs, in quest of their fourth western crown, left their star wartime replacement, Eddie Marchant, behind. Marchant, who bagged four goals in the first game of the Monarchs-Port Arthur western semi-final series, suffered a groin injury and may not see action again until the teams return to the Manitoba capital.

Injuries were few on the Manitoba championship club. Gordon Scott, who missed the play-offs, is still nursing a foot injury while forward Clint Albright and defenceman Bill Tindall have "slight" Charley-horses.

In the Moose Jaw camp, Canucks appeared confident despite injuries. "It's going to take a good hockey team to beat us and I don't think Monarchs are good enough to do it," said Manager J. Harper Parry.

Canucks, after their 12th straight play-off victory, will be without the services of their star left wing, Dick Butler, formerly of Trail Smoke Eaters, last season's western champions. Left winger Jackie Miller and defenceman Al Swaine also are on the sidelines due to replacements, including forwards Gerry Couture of Saskatoon and Doug Toole of Notre Dame Hounds and Paddy Ryan, Regina Commandos defenceman.

Couture is expected to take Butler's spot on the first string with Frank Ashworth at centre and Clarence Marquess at right wing.

Winnipeg players are: Ted Chitty, goal; Bill Tindall, Dunc Daniels, Tank Kummerfield, Cam Millar, and Don McRae, defence; George Robertson, Hy Beatty, Walter Hergesheimer, Al Buchanan, Clint Albright, Ken McFerran, Walter Gacek and Gordon Scott, forwards.

Dodgers Will Have 17-Year-Old Player

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N.Y., March 29.—(AP)—They say anything can happen in Brooklyn. But who would have dared predict a year ago that a 17-year-old would be the regular shortstop and a 43-year-old would share the catching duties for the Dodgers?

Manager Leo Durocher let it be known that Tommy Brown, who won't be 18 until Dec. 6, "is the only infielder sure of his berth" while Clyde Sukeforth, former Montreal Royals manager, "will do plenty of catching this season."

This is Brown's second year in organized baseball. After playing three years in the Brooklyn Kiwanis League, he was plucked by the Dodgers and sent to their Newport News (Va.) farm where he batted .297 in 91 games and led the Piedmont league in tripies. He was called up in August and in 64 games batted a meagre .164.

Five Canadian Ships Claiming Navy Hoop Title

LONDON, March 29.—(CP)—Chances are that if something isn't done soon, the war will be over before the Royal Canadian Navy can straighten out the tangle of its basketball championship, now claimed by at least five ships to say nothing of inland barracks.

Actually, there are more than five ships who feel that they have conquest rights on any naval cage title. But main claiments are the anti-aircraft cruiser HMCS Prince Robert, the minesweeper HMCS Canso, and the frigate HMCS Seacliffe, HMCS New Waterford and HMCS Jonquiere.

The Prince Robert has a record of only one loss in seven games. That was when they accepted a challenge from the little sweeper Canso and the Canso lads sandbagged the Robert crew for a close but meritorious victory.

The claim of the Jonquiere is simply that she's willing to stack her list of athletes against those of any other ship in any sport. They have such fellows as Bill Hewitt, former Winnipeg, St. Andrew and Vancouver North Shore.

Man O'War 28, But Still Frisky

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 29.—(AP)—Today is an occasion in the rolling blue grass country.

A grand old man—Man O'War—the most famous horse in American turf history, will reach the 28th milestone in his plutocratic life.

Big Red now is in complete retirement at Samuel D. Riddle's Faraway farm near here.

The Big Red is a frisky fellow, despite his years and an old-age sag in his back.

Man O'War was foaled March 29, 1917, and was retired from racing 25 years ago after 20 turf victories in 21 starts.

(Actually, "Red" was 28 on Jan. 1 since that is the universal age-change date for thoroughbreds, but his foaling date is observed on the exact date).

Girls' Basketball Series Opens Here Next Monday

Edmonton's hopes for a western Canada basketball championship lie in the hands of the Army and Navy Pats, Alberta senior girls' hoop title-holders. The Pats meet the winner of the Saskatchewan—Manitoba series at the local Westglen gym next Monday and Tuesday for the right to enter the west final against Vancouver. If a third game is necessary it will be arranged later.

The Pats, recent winners of the Edmonton Girls' Basketball League, eliminated Calgary in their first step towards their goal by taking a two-game total-points series 89-38 and will be undefeated in playoffs when they meet the other western semi-finalists.

The Pats only lost one game and won 14 so far this season, and that single loss was in a league game. Clare Hollingsworth, who is coaching his first entry in the senior playdowns, has a highly rated club that has an average score for the season of 43.8 per cent. He also has some highly rated players in Etta Dann and Noel Robertson, two former Grads; Peggy Colville, Laura (Strachan) Scott and Margaret Hembling, former Comets. Calgary Couple Again Reunited After Five Years

VANCOUVER, March 29—(CP)—A Calgary couple, Lt.-Col Mary Dover, chief recruiting officer at Ottawa for the Canadian Women's Army Corps, and her husband, Maj. M. C. Dover of the Celyon defence force at Colombo, are together again after being separated by the exigencies of war for the last five years.

Col. Dover didn't expect to run into her husband when she left for a tour of the western provinces a couple of weeks ago. But, after a chase across Canada and "hundreds of telegrams and long-distance calls," Maj. Dover, who recently arrived in North America after a 33-day trip from Ceylon, finally caught up with his wife in Victoria. They leave here Thursday for their hometown—Calgary.

Australia Backs Canadian Views On World Parley

By C. R. BLACKBURN

WASHINGTON, March 29—(CP)—Australia's delegates to the forthcoming San Francisco conference to set up a world security conference sided with Canada yesterday in urging that the "secondary" or middle powers be accorded an important role in the proposed world organization to maintain peace.

The Australians, Dr. H. V. Evatt, minister of external affairs, and Francis Forde, deputy prime minister, expressed at a press conference their approval of Prime Minister Mackenzie King's announced view on the proposed world league: that the major secondary powers, such as Canada and Australia be given a special place in any post-war league.

Minister Proposes Group to Review Vets' Legislation

OTTAWA, March 29—(CP)—Veterans Minister Mackenzie, addressing a conference of the War Amputations Association of Canada, last night suggested establishment of a Commons veterans' committee at the first session of a new parliament to review all veterans legislation with a view to suggesting improvements.

"I hope to see", he said, "the setting up at the first session of the new parliament, which will likely be held later this year, of a committee composed of returned servicemen. This non-partisan committee would review the veterans legislation of the last five years and make recommendations leading to its improvement".

Soldiers May Kill or Capture Nazi Fuehrer

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, March 29.—(BUP)—Foriegn Secretary Anthony Eden told Commons yesterday that Adolf Hitler is the major war criminal and that British soldiers could decide for themselves whether to shoot him on sight or bring him back alive.

Eden said that Hitler as the major war criminal under the Moscow declaration would be punished by joint action of the Allies if captured.

Eden was asked by Ivor Thomas, labor member, whether it would be the "duty of the British soldier who seeks Hitler out to shoot him or try to bring him back alive."

Eden said "I am very content to leave that to the judgment of any British soldier."

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

NEW YORK, March 29.—(BUP)—Frank J. Shaughnessy, president of the international league, believes that the approaching campaign in the minors will be the most important since Pearl Harbor because it should disclose definitely whether players returning from service can hope to regain their former prowess on the diamond.

It will be a tip-off campaign particularly for players who have been in combat on land or sea, he said yesterday. It should show whether their hardships, shocks and absence from the game will prevent them from recapturing their previous form.

The bit man with the thick thatch of grayish-brown hair discussed the situation at his downtown office. He said, "when the Minors open this time, I estimate that at least 25 percent of the players will be returned service men. This percentage will increase before autumn. The percentage of ex-service players is higher than one would casually expect, for this important reason: the minor leagues are using far fewer players now than they did before Pearl Harbor. Only 10 minor circuits are operating now, instead of the 42 that existed in 1941. Because of wartime conditions, 32 of them folded up—none recently, however.

MOST HAVE SEEN ACTION

"Most of the players returning to the minors from service now are men who have been in the armed forces for some time—men who have seen action. Their problems are far different from those of the few players who went into service and were used on camp and base teams, where they managed to keep in fair playing shape."

Everyone in the minors is pulling for the players who have returned from service—hoping that they'll be able to pick up where they left off—hoping that they'll be able to improve and advance to higher circuits, Shaughnessy said. But, in general, they still must be regarded as question marks.

From isolated cases already noted, he continued, " It would seem that men who have seen long, active service in the infantry and marines are finding it particularly difficult to get back into playing shape. Players who have been shocked in combat, sometimes get jumpy when the crowd yells or when there are other loud noises during the game. And players who for months have been roughing it in the jungles and mud, or making long marches, packing heavy equipment, find it difficult to get muscles used to the fast action and split-second timing required on the diamond.

SHOULD TELL THE TALE

"But we'll find out all about that this summer. This season in the minors should tell the tale, should disclose definitely what we can expect from the bulk of ex-service players. And whether we must depend more and more upon teen-aged kids for our future talent."

Shaughnessy emphasized that there would be no manpower problem in the minors this season. The international league, for example will use only about 200 players. It has plenty of men to draw from. Despite the many international circuit performers who have moved up to the majors since last season.

"We expect another prosperous campaign in our league," he concluded. "Last season was our best since 1939. Only one of our clubs finished in the red financially. We had a red hot pennant race, torrid play-offs, and a tight junior-world series. What more could one ask"

But there was another circumstance: "we shall be having a general election in this country shortly," he said. "I cannot say yet because I cannot fix the date at the moment, not knowing when the Ontario election may take place, and that is another feature which has come into the picture, because any date we may set may have relation to that.

"I had hoped that the election might follow very shortly after the termination of Parliament; I do not mean the date of polling, but the beginning of the campaign might easily take place while the San Francisco conference itself is on. It would be impossible to be sure that in going to San Francisco one would be able to remain there until the close of the conference in those circumstances.

"Personally, I intend in assuming the responsibility of going there, to feel that it is the obligation which the country wishes me to regard first of all, and I hope that the members of my party, as I am sure they will, will realize that in not being able to be in Canada for at least a period of a month, in all probability three or four weeks, when the election campaign is on, the reason is not that I am not anxious to do all I possibly can to see that the present administration is returned to power and that its policies are made to prevail in the next few years.

MAIN RESPONSIBILITY

"Rather the reason is I feel that the greatest responsibility is at the moment to do what can be done in the name of this country in helping to bring this great peace conference into being."

Mr. King said it might even be difficult for him to visit his own constituency, but he believed the people of Canada would realize the position in which he was placed.

The prime minister thought the mere mention of the list of interests suggested (by Gordon Graydon, opposition leader) that should be represented at the conference—agriculture; labor; veterans; industry; business, and so on, makes apparent the difficulty in selecting a delegation of that kind. The line had to be drawn somewhere, and he felt it could be best drawn by confining representation to parliament.

Mr. King thought he had made the policies of the government in respect to going to San Francisco quite clear, and members were pretty generally agreed they were the right ones.

WOULD BE MANDATE

So far as a mandate was concerned, when the resolution pased the house, it would be a mandate. The government must carry on, election or at any other time; it might be, for example, that there would be an election in Britain while the British delegation was at San Francisco, but would anyone suppose that delegation would come back because there was no mandate.

He assumed that when the new organization came into being it would gradually take over some of the functions of the many organizations under the old League of Nations. He had no doubt that the International Labor Office would become a part of the new organization.

Then the Prime Minister took up the subject of military commitments and here he clashed with Howard Green (Progressive Conservative, Vancouver South).

Mr. King said he took strong exception to the opposition trying to make him responsible for "certain positions" with which he had nothing whatever to do. It had begun with Mr. Green saying he, the Prime Minister, had put forward certain proposals in using force outside of Canada, and in the application of force. Mr. Green had said his statements were capable of two interpretations, then he had given the wrong interpretation and all the opposition had followed him.

"I said exactly what I meant", put in Mr. Green.

"The reason I am taking exception to this", said the Prime Minister, "is that my honorable friends in opposition are creating in the minds of certain nations, or endeavoring to create, a reference to Canada's attitude which will have a very far-reaching effect among the delegates who will be present at San Francisco from other countries".

WRONG IMPRESSION

Mr. Green said the prime minister had given the impression. Mr. King retorted the opposition was creating a wrong impression "and an infinite amount of mischief before the meeting takes place at San Francisco at all. . . . Everything that they have been saying about the British Commonwealth not operating together as one, is going to be inimical and harmful to members of the British delegation, and of all who represent any part of the British Commonwealth, when they go to San Francisco. It is not a question, said Mr. King, "of the effect on our domestic politics; the people in Canada know the honorable gentlemen; know what they have been saying for 20 years, and know what value to attach to it.

"But the citizens of Holland and Belgium, France and Brazil and all the American republics and others do not know. But what they hear is that the Canadian delegation is already committed to certain attitudes and they must become prejudiced in advance."

Mr. King then proceeded to clarify the point, he had said in his initial speech of March 20 that there was a good deal of obscurity about the methods whereby the proposals relative to military agreements would be developed.

NO MILITARY PACTS

"No military agreements," he said, "will be negotiated at San Francisco nor could any such agreements come into effect under the proposals until they have secured the approval of the security council. I suppose no one can say just when the agreements would be concluded, if the provisions relating to them are included in the charter."

Recalling Mr. Graydon's question whether the separate agreements to provide military forces to the council would be a blanket agreement covering all Canadian contributions, or whether there will have to be a special agreement covering each particular operation in which the organization may require men and equipment, and, if so, will each of these special agreements have to come before parliament for approval and ratification in each instance, Mr. King said.

"Here too, I am unable to give much further information except to state positively that under the proposals as they stand, any military agreement involving a contribution from Canada to any other member state will be subject to—and I quote the words—"the ratification of the signatory states in accordance with their constitutional processes.'"

ADVANCE INFORMATION

Mr. King says that the general scheme he had quoted from above was designed to make it possible for the security council to know in advance what armed forces, facilities, and assistance would be available to it to deal with whatever dangers might arise. He recalled that in his speech of March 20, he had said that "as they stand the acceptance of the proposals would in no way commit Canada to send forces beyond Canadian territory at the call of the security council. If any such commitment were made, it would be embodied in a later agreement freely negotiated by the government of Canada, and coming into effect only after it had been approved by parliament."

"There," he said, "I was stating a fact. The proposals that are before me are not proposals I have made; they are proposals made by the great powers, acting together; seeking to get as large a measure of agreement as possible.

"They are their proposals and as I read them I think I can see what was in the minds of the great powers . . . They realized that if this organization was to serve the great purpose for which it is intended, it would need to have not only the support of the great powers, but the support of as many of the United Nations as it might be possible to bring into membership in the organization.

"In framing these proposals which are only for the purpose of affording a basis of discussion when it comes to creating a charter; they were careful to so frame them as to not make it impossible for some of the lesser powers, or other powers to join, in bringing this great organization into being.

NEED OTHER NATIONS

"It is sometimes forgotten that in planning this charter, if it is to be effective, it is not only necessary in the first instance to get other nations into the organization, but it is essential that those other nations shall have behind them the public opinion of the people of their countries. Steps have to be taken, one at a time, to remove grounds for suspicion.

"We have heard from the gentlemen in the far corner (Social Credit) which their suspicions are. There is no ground for one of them in anything that is to be found in the Dumbarton Oaks proposals; they have been drafted very carefully in order to make it possible to bring this organization into being. Then after it is created the further steps that are necessary will be taken one by one in order to ensure the permanence of peace.

"In all that is done, there has been the most positive assurance given that whatever constitutional procedure is followed by the different nations in their legislative bodies, that constitutional procedure will be followed before anything becomes an obligation upon the nation concerned.

"That is not my proposal; it is a statement of fact, in the proposals given to the world after the Dumbarton Oaks conference."

Mr. King said his statement (of March 20) was not intended to bear the construction which has been placed upon it, unwarrantedly by certain members of the opposition. He was not so concerned as to what the people of Canada might think of what the opposition had said, but with the view taken by other nations who would not understand.

CLARIFIES STATEMENT

"I want other nations to know," he said, "that my statement did not convey the impression what different opposition members have said that in entering a world organization, Canada had not very much to worry about, or that there is very little obligation; or that the government is trying to leave open an exit from some of the obligations that Canada will be asked to assume at San Francisco. Implying that such action was an attempt to appease the isolationists of Canada, or that it was offered as a sop to the isolationists or the little Canadians of a minority in this country in order to assure support for the resolution.

"Still less," continued Mr. King, "were my words intended to create the impression mentioned by the member from Lake Centre (John Diefenbaker) that Canada would underwrite world security conditionally, and partially."

Mr. King said those allegations were doing Canada an irreparable injury in advance of the conference.

He recalled that Mr .Green had represented the prime minister's words concerning military commitments, set out in the proposals, as giving the impression that Canada had very little obligation to asume, and that the government was still trying to leave open an exit, from such obligations. Mr. King said he could not remember that there was any outspoken support for any policy of commitments in advance from the Conservative side of the house from 1930 onwards.

SAID COMPLAINING

"We have been complaining about your no commitment policy for ten years," said Mr. Green.

Mr. King reiterated that to say his statement was an attempt to appease the isolationist of Canada was reading into it an unwarranted construction. There was one inescapable answer, said Mr. King, and went on:

"There was no commitment to go into the present war; there was no commitment on the part of Canada to play the part she has played in this war; there was no commitment that Canada should go on fighting in this war."

"The reason Canada went into the war," continued the prime minister, rousing loud general applause, "the reason Canada is fighting as she is today; the reason she is playing the part she has played in this war; is that Canada was at liberty of her own free will to play the part she thought she should play in the great cause of world freedom."

The prime minister said Mr. Green has suggested that Canada should be part of one Commonwealth unit which should have the right to say what shall be done by all the members of the Commonwealth.

"I ask him this question," proceeded the prime minister; "If that wish had prevailed, does he think Canada would have been playing the part that she is playing today in this war?"

COMPLETE ANSWER

"I say that a complete answer as to whether the policies of this government have been sound, is found in the way in which this country responded to the needs of the moment that we had a practical situation facing us.

"I repeat that if there had been commitments in advance, this country would never have gone into the war in the united manner in which it has.

"This country would never have given the army she has given; the navy; the air force; the munitions; the food supplies; the financial aid, and the mutual aid in different forms, she has given, if there had been any effort to commit her in advance to all these things. She has given her all in a total war effort because there was no commitment and because the heart of Canada was sound and we did not need to be asking any commitments."

More loud government applause.

The prime minister brought on another clash by remarking that the opposition always found it necessary to "belittle Canadians' war effort, although Mr. Churchill has not found it necessary."

TOLD TO "SIT DOWN"

"Now Mr. Speaker," cried Mr. Green, rising; shouts of 'sit down,' 'sit down' greeted him. "Some honorable members who are shouting 'sit down'," retorted Mr. Green, "will not have to shout about it, in a few weeks. The prime minister must withdraw his statement. He has no right to say that about our belittling the war effort because it is entirely incorrect".

There were more shouts of "it is not" and "it is" and Mr. Green went on to say the opposition had not made any attempt to belittle Canada's war effort, and never have.

"But the prime minister," he said, "is of the view that the war effort is the effort of the Liberal party."

"He cannot charge me with that, and it must be withdrawn."

Great confusion followed, some members shouting "what about throwing rifles overboard, what about Bracken in Grey North, sit down, order".

Opposition leader Graydon made himself heard with "surely a mechanical majority like this is not allowed to control the whole parliament".

Mr. Green demanded a ruling from the Speaker that the words be withdrawn and the Prime Minister interjected to say that Mr. Green "has tried to belittle everything I have done in every utterance he has made".

The Speaker ruled that the Prime Minister had applied the words as a general statement against the opposition and had not singled out Mr. Green.

HITS OUT AT BRUCE

The Prime Minister also took Dr. H. H. Bruce, Progressive Conservative, Parkdale, to task for having asserted that Mr. King had said he would 'refer all matters of aggression to parliament and await its decision before taking action" which would mean "the most certain way of bringing about a third world war".

"I have made no declaration of any kind, directly or indirectly", said Mr. King "which could be construed as indicating an intention of relating any matters of aggression to parliament and to await its decision before taking action".

The Prime Minister also rebutted a statement of Dr. Bruce that Mr. King contemplated that when peace is threatened, consent of parliament must be obtained before armed forces can be used.

"I made no proposals with respect to how our armed forces are to be used," declared Mr. King. "I could not do so. The organization itself is not in existence as yet, and until it is and treaties have been made no one will be able to know what will be expected of any nation.

"And more than that, until we know what the terms of peace are, and what those great powers propose to do in maintaining peace, and what is provided for Germany and Japan in the years to come—and these are only a few things—until we know these things we do not know what force may be required, or what demands may be made upon any country. I have made no proposal whatever and the honorable member knows it."

QUOTES IMPRESSIONS

Mr. King then proceeded to quote a number of such impressions broadcast through some of the opposition press, and in rebuttal quoted a lengthy editorial from the Ottawa Journal, a Conservative newspaper, fully sustaining his position that he had merely presented to Parliament what the Dumbarton Oaks proposals had set forth with reference to military commitments.

The prime minister said he was unable to say what might be done with respect to revision of treaties by the world organization until he knew what would be outlined at the San Francisco conference.

"The Canadian government," he said at another point, "has neither advanced nor has any iptention of advancing a claim to rank equal with the great powers (for a permanent seat) on the Security Council.

"There is also a good deal of talk, much of it critical, of an alleged desire on the part of the Canadian government to see Canada enrolled among the middle powers. I was careful in my statement to say nothing to support this unfounded assumption. The truth is, however, that Canada, although not large in population, has obtained through the rigor of our people, and the extent of our resources, a position in which Canadian interests are world-wide.

POTENTIAL CONTRIBUTION

"The potential contribution of Canada to the purposes of the world organization for peace cannot be measured by counting heads, it can, therefore, be estimated by regarding the not inconsiderable part, military, economic and financial, which our country has taken in the alliance with the great powers."

On the subject of "a single voice speaking on behalf of the Commonwealth," he recalled that subject was debated thoroughly in the last session of parliament.

"I said then," declared Mr. King, "that the British Commonwealth of Nations has never been, nor can it now be, a single entity in international affairs. The British Commonwealth is not a nation; it is rather a fraternity of nations, who are by formal definition and by long practice, 'autonomous communities' in no way subordinate one to the other in any aspect of their domestic or internal affairs. It was never done in the League of Nations nor in any of its subsidiary agencies; nor has it ever been suggested as applying to inter-governmental bodies created during the present war.

"We cannot at this stage of our history as a free nation turn back upon the process by which we reached nationhood."

The prime minister said the opposition were seeking to go back to the days prior to the last war, prior to the conference held at the time of treaty-making, seeking to undo the work that Sir Robert Borden and his colleagues successfully performed in gaining for Canada her right to sign that treaty as of herself instead of simply being locked with the other nations of the Commonwealth all as one.

SEEK TO UNDO WORK

"They are seeking," he said, "to undo the work of the Imperial Conferences of 1923 and 1926 where the Balfour declaration was made, not by Canada alone, but by Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the United Kingdom setting out the position of the different nations of the Commonwealth.

"They would throw that into the discard altogether as well as the 'Statute of Westminster' which was enacted not by this parliament but by the United Nations parliament, making clear the autonomous position of each nation and its individual personality and individual rights."

The prime minister recalled a statement he had made on August 4, of last year that:

"Inside the Commonwealth we can and do manage as a rule to reach agreement on the general lines of policy which our governments should pursue in dealing with major issues.

POSSIBLE TO AGREE

"We find it possible to agree because we have the will to agree. If, however, the countries of the Commonwealth had to reach agreement by some political process yet to be devised so that all were bound to carry out a single policy there would be a very different story. The world council is to be an executive body. It must be capable of prompt and single-minded action. The United Kingdom which is indisputably a great power will sit in the council in its own right and its influence there will be enhanced by its special relationship with the countries of the Commonwealth. The United Kingdom representative, however, will be responsible to London and will take his instructions from London alone."

Mr. King went on to ask if this were changed and the critical members of the opposition were the representatives of the British Commonwealth, would he have to withhold action until he had received instructions from half a dozen governments? What would he do if the instructions were in conflict—follow the majority opinion even if it were violently opposed by the government, parliament and people in one or more Commonwealth countries?

The prestige of the British Commonwealth was never higher abroad than today. Our friends abroad had discovered that its primary objects could be shared by other countries of goodwill—that it was not a power bloc but a reliable element within the framework of world order.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Answering questions from the Social Crediters, Mr. King said that the international organization would strengthen and not weaken the Commonwealth. The short answer to the question whether endorsement of the resolution meant endorsement of the Bretton Woods final act was "no"—the house was not being asked to endorse the Bretton Woods act though he was convinced that collaboration among nations in the economic and financial field is a vital part of any effective system of international security.

He did not believe that Mr. Blackmore, the Social Credit leader, had given an accurate interpretation of the proposals, nor that analysis would support the criticism the Social Crediters had made.

Mr. King said that none of the proposals and principles under discussion meant the return of the gold standard. He refused to enter into a controversy with M. Blackmore on the poin.

When it becomes necessary to take action in order to secure the approval of parliament (of the international organization charter) Mr. King said "if the present government is in office, opportunity will be given to consider what form of action and what method of procedure would most appropriately give an opportunity for adequate parliamentary consideration and discussion.

QUESTION ON TRADE

Answering a question whether if the proposals are adopted, would Canada and any other individual nation be able to negotiate a trade agreement upon a basis satisfactory to the two countries without any interference by the world organization, Mr. King replied: "Certainly; the proposals before the house do not relate to the conduct of inter-governmental affairs."

The Prime Minister said he did not expect questions of trade would arise directly at San Francisco. The general assembly and economic social council would have the responsibility for facilitating "solutions of international, economic, social and other humanitarian problems."

Specialized international bodies brought into relation with the economic and social council would deal with various aspects of these functions and promotion of trade undoubtedly is an essential element in promoting human welfare.

A specialized agency should be established in relation with the economic council also with respect to international questions of education He did not expect much discussion on the subject at San Francisco where the chief business would be the establishment of world order. The Canadian government has kept in close touch with the educational discussions in London among the allied governments. On the status of members of the Canadian delegation, the prime minister said: "Kept in their place for all time to come.

"The character of the organization will doubtless make some reference to the question. It can be settled only in the light of conditions as they develop."

MORE HORRIBLE WAR

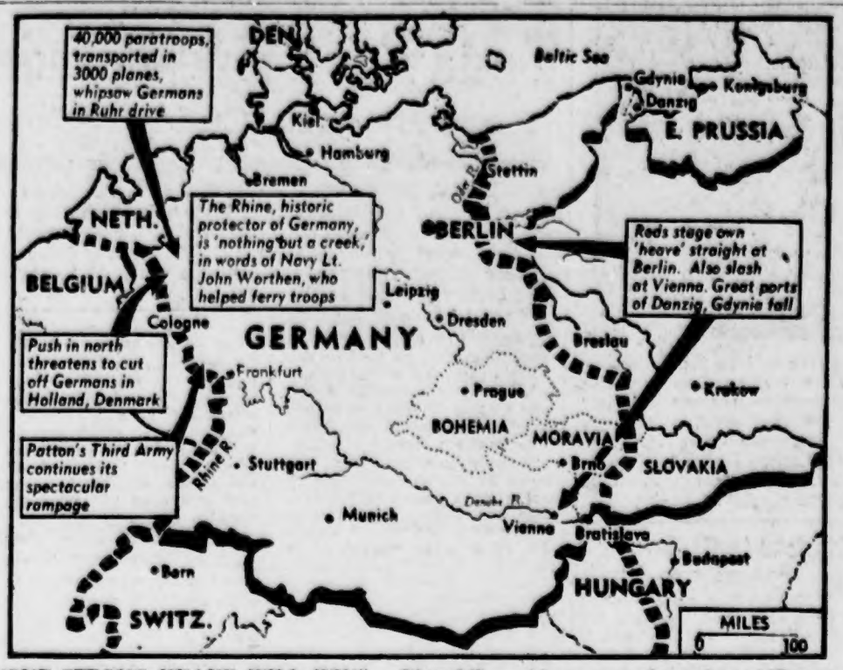

In conclusion, Mr. King said solemnly that if another war breaks out in 20 or 30 years, it will be "more horrible than this war which has been more horrible than the last".

"The last restraints would go and unrestrained savagery equipped with new and frightful weapons, would spread over the world.

"It is the note which I know is uppermost in the minds of the people everywhere today.

"If we have another confragration such as we have had in this war, this country stands to lose more than any other nation on earth, because of our great resources, our climate and our situation between the continents of Europe and of Asia".

The Prime Minister's final word was that he had invited Field Marshal Smuts to come to Canada,, either before or after the conference, and the Field Marshal had accepted.

"ONE STRONG HEAVE WILL WIN"—Churchill — Above map shows how Allies on Western Front and Russians are co-ordinating in the "one big heave" that will win the war, according to Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Conspiracy Trial Makes Progress

Trial of Roderick A. MacDonald and Clarence E. Inman, Edmonton, on a charge of conspiring to defraud the public was continuing in supreme court Wednesday with Guy Patterson, KC, crown prosecutor, examining witnesses on the collection methods adopted by the accused.

Two witnesses were called by the crown who had been employed by Macdonald in the operation of charity carnivals and dances. One testified that when operating for a Polish society he went under the name of "Baruk," and in the Riverdale community league hall appeal the assumed name of "B. A. Watson" was used.

Miss Elsie Braitenbock, Brightbank resident, told the court she had been engaged by MacDonald to make collections in connection with the Riverdale Community League dance. She had been told by the accused that if asked for the names of officers in charge of the drive for funds she was to say it was Mr. Hager. Mr. Hager is the treasurer of the community league.

She told the court that, in the presence of MacDonald, an employee had warned her to make no mention of the Tegler building office. Collection headquarters for MacDonald and Inman were located on the seventh floor of this building.

This witness testified that when she first went to the Tegler building office three persons were engaged telephoning business people asking for donations to help rebuild the hall. She told the court the three working on the telephones told their prospects that a fire had destroyed the community hall, and that they were seeking financial assistance to rebuild it.

The hearing is proceeding.

"Good Luck, Good Flying" House Wishes PO. Taylor

"Good luck and good flying" were wishes accorded PO. Gordon E. Taylor, Social Credit member of the Legislature for Drumheller, just before the assembly adjourned for Easter recess Wednesday.

POSTED HERE.—J. R. Strother, superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Saskatoon since June, 1942, has been posted to Edmonton effective April 1 as superintendent. Mr. Strother came up through the general manager's and vice-president's office on eastern lines and came to western lines at Winnipeg fifteen-years ago as chief clerk to the vice-president and general manager. In Winnipeg "Joe" Strother was an executive member of the Blue Bombers' football club. He served as assistant superintendent at Macleod and Bassano, Alta., before going to Saskatoon as superintendent three years ago.

Mr. Taylor, who has been called back to duty with the RCAF after spending some time in the air force reserve, will be unable to attend next week's sittings of the Legislature. He will leave for the east and overseas at the end of this week.

Premier Ernest Manning, drawing attention of the house to Mr. Taylor's departure, said "I think it is only fitting to express to the member our best wishes on his pending departure to perform duties in the service of his country."

"We wish him God-speed, good flying, good hunting and a safe and happy return."

JOINS IN TRIBUTE

J. Percy Page (Ind.-Edmonton), leader of the official opposition, joined in the tribute extended to Mr. Taylor. "Few constituencies are receiving better service than Mr. Taylor's," the Independent member stated. "We wish him God-speed and a safe return to take up the duties he has performed so efficiently."

Wing. Cmdr. F. C. Colborne, DFC, air force member, expressed good wishes on behalf of the armed service members of the assembly. The Drumheller member now could be counted one of his constituents, the air force MLA suggested.

After the assembly rose, members from all sides of the house took the opportunity of extending personal good wishes to the departing member.

Mr. Taylor has been acting as Social Credit party whip since the session began Feb. 22. A successor to that post has not been named by the SC party caucus.

SPO. WILLIAM BLACKWELL

City Man Has Part In Rescue at Sea

The dramatic rescue at sea of more than 100 survivors of the torpedoed passenger ship SS Caribou is regarded by SPO. William Blackwell, RCNVR, as his outstanding service incident. The seaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Blackwell, 11304 86 street, is at present home on furlough while his ship is in refit.

According to SPO. Blackwell, the Caribou had been torpedoed in mid-Atlantic at about 4 a.m. by a Nazi raider. A high sea, oily water and the black darkness of the oceanic night combined to make the rescue of the hapless victims a perilous undertaking. But the Canadian minesweeper, whose complement included Blackwell, drew over to the scene of the disaster, determined to assist the crippled vessel as much as possible.

Little could be done for three hours, until grey dawn lifted the visibility blackout. Then 104 survivors were picked up. "It was a tough job," Blackwell recalled.

The seaman was born in Edmonton and educated in city schools. He is a brother of Dorothy Blackwell, prominent Edmonton soprano. He joined the Navy in 1939 and, apart from his jeep training, has seen action almost constantly on convoy duty in the North Atlantic.

Civic Employee Is Leaving Post

An employee of the city health department since 1907 and chief health inspector since 1907, William R. Graham, will retire on pension at the end of this month. He will be succeeded by J. H. Blackburn, senior health inspector in the department.

Born in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, Mr. Graham came to Edmonton in 1907 and immediately entered the city's health department. He recalled Thursday that one of the first tasks given him in the department was to act as policeman at the smallpox camp on the Hudson's Bay Reserve.

He will retire to the Lac Ste Anne district where he will conduct farming operations. He will be the guest of honor at a banquet given him by the employees of the health department at the Purple Lantern.

Assent Given To Fifty Bills By Lieut.-Gov.

Royal assent was given Wednesday afternoon to 50 bills passed at the present session of the Legislature, when His Honor Lt.-Gov. J. C. Bowen formally approved the legislation just before the assembly adjourned for an Easter recess.

The assent ceremony took place at 5:45 p.m., when the lieutenant-governor entered the legislative assembly chamber. He was accompanied by Maj. C. V. Dacre, secretary.

Robert A. Andison, clerk of the assembly, read names of the bills to which royal assent was required. After assent was given, His Honor retired from the assembly.

MOST BECOME LAW

After royal assent is accorded most bills become provincial law. The few which do not become law immediately are effective on proclamation or upon a certain stated date.

Among bills assented to Wednesday was one which organizes the new economic affairs department. Another in the group was the Appropriations Act, which is authority to spend the $28,000,000 voted in estimates in the 1945-46 fiscal year. The new fiscal period begins April 1.

The new National Housing Loans Act (Alberta) also was given assent. This legislation is designed to withhold certain statutory provisions said to debar operation of the National Housing Act in the province.

Legislation enacting charter amendments for the cities of Edmonton, Calgary and Medicine Hat also received approval of the lieutenant-governor, as did a bill amending the Child Welfare Act and another dealing with juvenile offenders.

THE QUESTION

With people calling The Edmonton Bulletin every day to report the advent of bluebirds, robins and other spring harbingers, right now would be a fair enough time to ask: "Where are you going for your summer holidays?"

THE ANSWERS

CPL. DON WILKIE, RCAF: I'm not sure yet, but I've been led to believe I may be spending my summer underneath an African sky. And, believe it or not, I'm very much in favor of the idea!

* * *

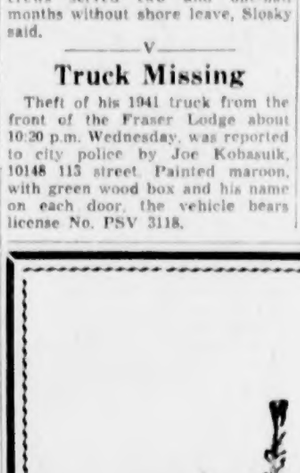

MARY CHERMAN, waitress: I haven't thought much about it yet, but if I get this year's holidays at a favorable time of the summer, I think I'll plan on visiting one of the lakes around Edmonton for a spell. My extensive travelling is waiting for the time when my Victory Bonds mature.

* * *

JOHN McGROHAN, war veteran: After this last winter, all I want to do this summer is get out in the garden and get busy with the rake and hoe. I have some big plans for this year's flower beds and my summer holidays next month will fit into those plans perfectly.

Young City Sailors In on Great Events

Young Ken Carter, who used to perform daily chores for The Edmonton Bulletin advertising department, has had a "deckchair" seat so to speak in many of the most stupendous events in history since he donned a suit of navy blue three years ago.

Able Seaman Ken Carter joined the RCNVR at HMCS Nonsuch here in 1942 and for a long time now he has served aboard a very famous unit of the young but powerful Canadian Navy, HMCS Auxiliary Cruiser Prince David.

Ken stood at his post on one of the main battery of four-inchers on D-Day before the Normandy beaches la. June. She was the first ship to return to England with wounded from that first day of furious fighting.

PICKED UP WOUNDED

"We picked up wounded from every Allied army that day and had them back in Britain that same night," AB Carter said. He's still a bit disappointed that he didn't get a chance to fire his battery on that great day.

Later HMCS Prince David was the first Allied war vessel to enter a Greek harbor as the Nazis fled and the ship was chosen to carry the Greek cabinet back to their homeland from "exile" in Egypt.

She also landed paratroopers and French Commandos during the invasion of Southern France.

Only damage suffered by the former coastal luxury liner was when she struck a mine in entering Piraeus Harbor at Athens.

On D-Day in Normandy she landed a French Canadian regiment.

LANDING CRAFT LOST

Most of their landing craft later were lost because of Hun-placed beach obstructions.

The landings in southern France after night were quite exciting. There was heavy enemy fire.

Capt. Thomas D. Kelly of Victoria was commanding officer of the David during her pulsating D-Day operations in Normandy and southern France and in Greece.

AB. Kenny Carter is mighty glad to get the pavement of Jasper avenue beneath his feet again and will be well pleased when the final victory sirens are blowing.

Another young Edmonton sailor home on leave after exciting adventures during the Normandy beachhead operations is Leading Sick Bay Attendant J. W. Slosky, 10131 95 street.

A former student at Victoria High School, Slosky has been three years in the RCNVR.

SPINE-TINGLING JOB

He had a spine-tingling job on D-Day aboard a minesweeper that with other units of a Canadian flotilla started at 3 a.m. to sweep the mines ahead of the landing craft.

"Our flotilla swept up over 100 mines and our ship was never once hit by enemy fire although we had to sweep close into the shore," the Edmonton seaman said.

"We were close to the Cherbourg Peninsula that morning and heavy units of the United States battle fleet, including the battleship Arizona, was a quarter of a mile out further to sea than our sweepers. Before the landing Allied planes gave the German coast defence a terrible pounding and then the warships started bombarding the shore.

The Arizona, which has 14-inch main battery guns, was battered at Pearl Harbor and later reconditioned for service.

"Every time the Arizona fired a broadside the little minesweeper would bob around like a cork," Slosky said.

From before the invasion until the tension eased the minesweeper crews served two and one-half months without shore leave, Slosky said.

Truck Missing

Theft of his 1941 truck from the front of the Fraser Lodge about 10:20 p.m. Wednesday, was reported to city police by Joe Kobasuik, 10148 113 street. Painted maroon, with green wood box and his name on each door, the vehicle bears license No. PSV 3118.

2 City Jewelry Stores Robbed: Find Some Loot

Two Edmonton jewelry stores were robbed of an unstated quantity of watches and other articles early Thursday morning, according to city police. The shops were those of J. E. Fromant, 10359 97 street, and J. Glauser, 9442 118 avenue. In both cases, the plate glass windows were smashed and displayed goods taken.

A patrol officer's check of the Fromant jewelry store at 3:45 a.m. found the premises in good order. Eighteen minutes later, three men in the district reported that the place had been robbed.

Police, on going to the scene, discovered that a number of articles had been taken, and found a watch on the ground a short distance from the store.

FIND WATCH CASE

Continued search resulted in the finding of a watch case a short distance away from the watch. It was impossible at the time, Mr. Fromant told police, to ascertain the value of the missing goods. It was the second time in just more than a year that this shop had been burglarized.

Similar circumstances surrounded the smashing of the plate glass window in the J. Glauser Jewelry Store. This was discovered by a patrol officer just 19 minutes after he had made a check of the premises.

A large piece of concrete was found near the window and the proprietor was notified. After making a check, Mr. Glauser stated that it was thought about six wrist watches, a silver necklace, and one ear-ring of a set, were missing.

Investigations are continuing.

On Inspection

Maj. Gen. G. R. Turner, Ottawa, CB, MC, DCM, inspector general of Canadian Army forces in Western Canada, arrived in Edmonton Thursday morning in the course of an inspection tour.

I SAW TODAY.—Walter P. Wilson, chatting with friends over a mid-morning cup of coffee; AND Keith Krinke strolling along Jasper avenue with friends; Don McGarvey parking his car in the downtown section; Bert Hollingshead walking towards the War Saving Stamp bar; Harold Jackson hard at work in his office; Pat Rooney looking attractive in a spring ensemble; Bill Wright climbing aboard a tram in the west end; George Conquest looking scholastic with an armful of books.

Packers Will Work 48 Hours Per Week

An agreement was signed Wednesday between Canada Packers Ltd. and Local 243 United Packinghouse Workers of America.

Negotiations have been in progress since December and were concluded with the assistance of the Board of Industrial Relations.

The agreement provides for a reduction in hours from 50 to 48 weekly, holidays with pay, seniority, grievance procedure, check off and union security.

The union has an application before the War Labor Board for wage adjustments. Union officials claim this is one of the best agreements signed in the packing industry.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Love, Dead After 19 Years Irretrievable

Man and Wife Separated for 19 Years Should Not Get Together Again; Such a Reunion Will End in Unhappiness

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My wife and I have been separated 19 years, but we only got a divorce a little over a year ago. I am sure neither of us will ever remarry and think it is silly for us to live apart. We never did get along badly and, although my wife was fussy, I never let that bother me. I would let the storm blow over and then pet her out of it, but she got to the place where that did not fix things.

Now I would like to re-establish our home and get married again, but she won't agree to it. She won't even let me date her. Can you tell a bewildered ex-husband what to do?

D. D. W.

ANSWER: It seems from your account that your wife has just lost her taste for you, and that is a more serious situation than if she had left you because of some crime you had committed against her. For she might forgive you a wrong and love you still, but if she is just tired of you, it is final. There is no arguing with boredom.

Why we love, we do not know. Nor do we know why we cease to love. It is just that the one who once thrilled us thrills us no more. It is just that the one on whose words we once hung entranced interests us no more. It is just that the little mannerisms and faults and foibles that once seemed so fascinating get on our nerves. And no one is to blame. It is just one of those things that happen, and nobody can do anything about it.

Evidently this is the situation between you and your wife, and I think that you will make a mistake in trying to induce her to marry you again. You can't encore a honeymoon. Whatever it was that was the stumbling block between you 20 years ago is still there, and you would not find it easier to adapt yourselves to each other now than you did before. Age hardens us in our ways and accentuates our peculiarities, and after 20 years of freedom from the marriage bondage you would find it more difficult to get along harmoniously together than you did before.

My advice is to let well enough alone and to stay as you are.

PUT OFF

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a deaf college student, engaged to be married to a girl who is attending the same college I do. She is a junior, one year ahead of me, and wants to be married as soon as she receives her degree. If I do this, I will have to give up my education and go to work in some war industry. My problem is should I cease college work now and get a job in order to be financially able to support a wife?

T. G. F.

ANSWER: I would centainly urge you to put off your marriage until after you have finished your college course. With your handicap you will need all the education you can get in order to hold the position to which you aspire. This will be more especially the case if your fiancee is also hard of hearing, as I take it from the fact that she is also attending a college for the deaf.

If she loves you, she will certainly be willing to wait another year for you, and if she has the good, hard, common sense that a woman should have to make a good wife, she will see the advantage to be gained by putting off the marriage until you are in a position to take on the support of a family.

Don't let her rush you into a marriage for which you are not ready.

BOOK BORROWER

DEAR MISS DIX: What is the best way to stop a book borrower from borrowing my books which she returns smeared and torn? She comes into my home, picks out a book and walks out with it, without even saying by your leave. I cherish my books and spend much money buying good ones, while this pest never buys any, but depends upon me to furnish them.

MRS. BOOKWORM.

ANSWER: There is simply no way to rid yourself of a book borrower. Neither hints, nor showing reluctance, nor even downright refusal has the slightest effect upon them. They keep on their grafting way, showing neither conscience nor decency.

But your book borrower has one trait that is not common with the species. She turns your books battered and bruised it is true so that their own mother doesn't know them, but most book grafters never return the books at all. They keep them. The only thing you can do it to cultivate friends who don't read.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

THESE WOMEN—"Now here's a little number for the 18-to-45 group!"

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

I am following the regimen outlined in your pamphlet ("How to Lose Weight"—mailed on request if you provide a stamped envelope bearing your address—please do not use a clipping of this item in lieu of your request) and I am getting results slowly. . . .

(S. I. F.)

The correspondent does not say how much he or she has reduced in body weight or bulk or measurements or both in a month, but from the correspondent's letter I infer that he or she, like most obese, is disappointed if the slacker flesh does not melt away at least ten times as fast as it accumulated in the first place. That childish wish—for magical reduction to or nearly to the ideal by eleven o'clock next week—is the bait that catches so many suckers for eighteen-day diets and similar Hollywood hokum.

Take it easy, folks. Remember, I'm just a plodding door-to-door practitioner, not an eminent specialist, not a "food specialist", not a "diet specialist", just an ordinary doctor. If you follow the regimen, plan, program, routine or diet instructions I give in the pamphlet mentioned you may hope to reduce at the rate of a pound or two a week, some weeks and in some instances perhaps from two to five pounds, depending on your condition and the degree to which you adhere to the instructions.

If the prospect of reducing a pound or two or even three pounds a week does not appeal to you, then don't write now, fatty, but I'm afraid your case is hopeless.

The correspondent continues:

How about whole milk? Is milk fattening? (S. I. F.).

A glassful (half pint) of milk yields 160 calories, compared with a lamb chop 300 calories, an apple 100 calories, an egg 75 calories, four ounces (one-fourth pound) of roast beef 300 calories, a teaspoonful of sugar 30 calories, a small potato 100 calories or a nut fudge sundae 410 calories. A glassful of buttermilk yields 80 calories, or skim milk (milk from which cream has been removed), or separator milk (milk remaining after fat has been removed by the separator.) Both buttermilk and skim milk or separator milk are thus just half as nourishing as whole milk, so far as calories go, but in mineral nutrients and vitamins (B-complex) and particularly B-2, G or riboflavin, they are virtually equivalent to whole fresh milk in the diet.

Is milk fattening? The answer is yes and no and / or either. It would be hard to get fat on a diet of milk alone — it is too bulky — even 300 calories a day, which many persons require for maintenance of normal weight and strength, would call for consumption of more than a gallon of milk.

On the other hand, as you will find in the pamphlet "How to Gain Weight" — for copy send stamped envelope bearing your address, but do not use a clipping in lieu of your request — any one who will take a pint of milk or even a glassful (half-pint) with a slice of whole wheat bread and butter or oleomargarine with or without sugar or jelly or marmalade or jam, each night at bedtime, will readily put on from ten to twenty pounds in a year. This bedtime snack, of course, is supplementary to the ordinary daily meals.

Points for Parents

Mother: "I've gotten a lot more shelves for your room so you can keep your toys in their places as you do at kindergarten."

Mother: "Your kindergarten teacher tells me you help put away the blocks and the things at school without fussing. Why won't you at home?"

An environment which makes orderliness easy is the best way to accomplish this desirable condition.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

"Mama, I want a drink of water. Mama, I hear a noise. Mama, my covers fell off. Mama, I want to go to the toilet. Mama, Buddy is keeping me awake."

Every mother knows with what fury or despair she listens to those bright, complaining voices from the upper regions, once she has closed the door on her young hopefuls.

There is always that moment at the end of a nerve-racking, fatiguing day, when the one thing for which the mother yearns is a quiet spot into which to collapse. Those voices are the straws which break the camel's back. One knows, without listening, exactly the tone in which she will yell piercingly, "Stop talking and go to sleep!"

Children demand all the attention they can get as long as they can get it. If the mother runs up quickly and agreeably they will continue to keep her running. There has to be an end to attention.

It is plain the mother sometimes is at fault. She allows the child to sleep half the afternoon and when 7:30 rolls around plumps him into bed again, and expects him to sleep. He can't sleep. He's slept out. After a child's second or third year he needs only an hour's nap or a rest period and if he has more he'll be wakeful at bedtime and demanding and captious because of it.

The older children get, the harder it is for them to have the door closed upon them and feel themselves no longer a part of the family. They cling to it as long as they can think up excuses to keep Mother or Daddy in the room.

The small child, just below the age of reasoning, but still able to climb out of bed unassisted, can become a perfect pest through his capacity to come downstairs, whether his parents will it or not.

No one wants to advise a parent to ignore a child's reasonable requests; but it is better to attack this evening problem obliquely rather than head on. Insure that the children are sleepy at bedtime. Just before the door is closed ask them again if there is anything more. Don't hurry off, be leisurely about it. And for that scamp who climbs over the sides of the bed, put a gate on his door and even if he climbs out of bed, he'll climb back in when he finds he can't leave his dark room. He may roam awhile but shortly he'll discover that bed is the place for him.

Our leaflet, "Sleeping Habits", may be had by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

(This is the second of two articles on the Yarnall "Point System.")

Mr. L. F. Yarnall of Ventnor City, N.J., who advocates the point count system, states that the combination of K J X is grossly undervalued in honor trick counts where it receives only the value of one-half of an honor trick. When using his point system, the king receives a value of three points and the jack, one. Thus the combination has a value of one full honor trick.

He goes on to state that there is one chance out of three that the ace and queen of that suit are in partner's hand and two out of three that either the ace or queen will be there.

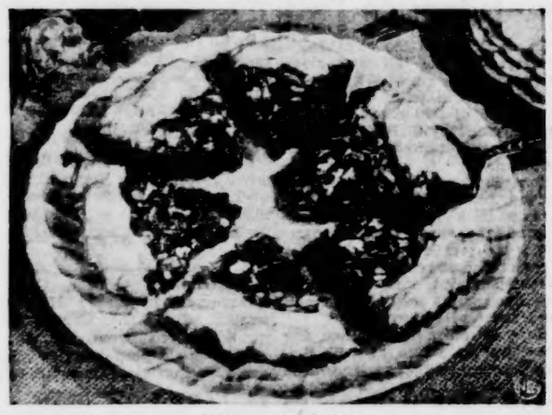

Here is another example:

Taking today's hand, we find the count of seven in spades, three in hearts, six in diamonds and two in clubs for a total of 18. Dividing this by four, we find this hand has four and one-half honor tricks, while the ordinary player would value the hand at between three and three and one-half honor tricks.

It is Mr. Yarnall's opinion that the beginner in bridge fails to place the proper value on queens and jacks when held separately. By using the point count, the bidder gets a clearer picture of the positive value of his hand and also a better picture of its defensive value against an opposing bid.

Too many players fail to place the proper defensive value on queens and jacks and this point system may help, especially for defensive purposes.

Date and fig torte

By GAYNOR MADDOX

It takes ingenuity to supply the family with desserts and sweets, but it can be done. Butter is a great help, along with honey, molasses, maple sugar or syrup (when you can get it) and corn syrup.

DATE AND FIG TORTE

(A pudding—a cake—or even cookies)
(Serves 6)

One-quarter cup butter, ¼ cup granulated sugar, ¾ cup light molasses (or honey or corn syrup), 2 egg yolks, well beaten; 1 cup nut meats coarsely chopped, 1/3 cup bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon allspice, 1 cup dates and figs, chopped together; ¼ cup milk.

Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and mix. Then add the molasses (or honey or corn syrup) and mix well. Add the egg yolks, well beaten. Mix nuts, baking powder bread crumbs, flour, salt, allspice. Then add the chopped figs and dates and again mix well. Add the first mixture along with the milk. Mix well. Pour into fluted pie plate. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Top with meringue and bake an additional 20 minutes.

Meringue: Beat 2 egg whites with rotary beater until they begin to fluff. Then begin to add 4 tablespoons of confectioner's sugar, a little at a time, continuing to beat with rotary. When all sugar is added and whites stand high, pile lightly on the torte, either as a rim around the edge, or over all the top. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.).

For Cakes: Prepare batter as in recipe. Beat egg whites until light and fluffy and fold into the batter. Pour into greased, paper-lined cake tin. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 40-45 minutes, until baked through. Cool and serve as cake.

For Cookies or little tea straws: Bake above batter in greased, paper-lined square cake pan, in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 40-45 minutes until baked through. Remove from pan. Cut while warm into finger-length strips. Sprinkle lightly with sugar. Store in tin box or crock.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit, whole-grain ready-to-eat cereal, omelet, enriched toast, butter, grape jelly, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Onion soup with grated cheese, hard rolls, cabbage and apple and raisin salad, cottage pudding with fruit sauce, tea, milk.

Used Boxes and Stones to Build Cabin in Overseas "Bomber City"

FERINTOSH: In a letter received by Ferintosh friends this week, Cpl. Louis Varro, USAAF, recounted the interesting history lying behind the cabin in which his bomber mates spend their leisure hours in Italy.

Excerpt from the letter follows:

"Last summer, six of us bought stone blocks and built us a cabin. It is much cozier than a tent in the summer and especially the winter. I built a water system and we got a gas heater. All is homemade, and out of the moonlight-requisitioned parts.

"Americans are known for their ingenuity, and if you saw this 'bomber city' when it was a cow trail, and again today, you would really know what I mean. Little by little we added to our home until today we live in comfort.

"Our chaplin has started constructing a chapel. We used to hold services in an old barn, also used for a theatre. Some of the boys thought we should have a chapel so boxes were passed out on payday and $1,900 was taken in."

Question: Should Cats Be Pinched?

MORRIN: The town constable is still pondering the question of whether or not a charge should be laid against a black cat that Saturday scratched its way up to the top of a light pole on main street and "rang" the fire alarm. Even if the cat didn't bring out the fire brigade, pretty nearly everybody else in town gathered at the scene.

The first telephone was made, not by Alexander Graham Bell himself but by his able assistant, Mr. Thomas Watson. It was Watson who heard the first words over the telephone when the hook-up was made and the test was performed. It is not likely that the idea would have occurred to either Bell or Watson if Bell had been blessed with normal hearing.

RCAF Padre Is Speaker

"When the United States joined with Great Britain in this present war the doom of Germany was sealed," declared Sqdn. Ldr. Herbert E. D. His men worship this general, the padre said.

NORMANDY

"I am certain that with the fanaticism, Germany has cracked because order it was founded on a fallacy. The Germans are still dreaming of a superman. Hitler, but we are awaiting the time when the Nazis realize their mistake, then peace will come to this world," the padre concluded.

Dynamic Christian Force Needed Premier Tells Graduating Class

The need for a dynamic Christian force is evident in the world today and will grow steadily in the days and months that lie ahead, youth must be aware of the challenge and prepare to meet it, Premier Ernest Manning said when he spoke at graduation exercises for students of the Christian Training Institute Wednesday evening in Central Baptist Church.

Close to 700 people packed the church to witness the commencement ceremonies at which Mr Manning was the principal speaker.

FOUR-FOLD SECRET

There is a four-fold secret for pursuing a successful Christian life the premier said, which can be summed up in the four words, purpose, preparation, practice and perseverance.

The purpose of life is fulfilled if a person can say he has glorified God and finished the work He set him to do, Mr. Manning said.

Life must have a purpose and a definite aim and the purpose of every Christian should be to glorify God in whatever work they are given to do. Preparation for the fulfillment of that purpose is very necessary, Mr. Manning said, and such schools as the Christian Training Institute provide valuable training for young Christians. He said he would like to see more such Bible schools established.

True Christians must put their beliefs into practice, he said, for they are the living examples of their faith, and perseverence is a quality which must be developed to a high degree in order that [illegible] nor praise can make them deviate from their true purpose.

Members of the graduating class are Frederick Henry Ohlmann, Martha Louisa Paul, Lena Irene Paul and Erna Edna Schwanke.

Miss Erna Schwanke was the class valedictorian and musical selections were provided during the program by members of the student orchestra and chorus.

The Rev. E. P. Wahl, principal of the Christian Training Institute, presented graduating students with their diplomas.

The Rev. F. W. Benke, BD, conducted the ceremonies and the Rev. H. G. Dymmel, Home Mission secretary, North American Baptist General Missionary society, gave the commencement address. His theme was "The Harp of Life." The Rev. Dymmel is from Forest Park, Ill., and has been lecturing at the institute for the last six weeks.

The graduation exercises closed a two-day session of meetings held by the Christian Training Institute, featuring special speakers and mission films.

Some of the speakers who participated in the meetings were Rev L. F. Cockram, Spruce Grove, the Rev. Hugo Lueck, BA. BD, the Rev R Schilke, the Rev. W. C. Smalley, general secretary of the Baptist Union of Western Canada, the Rev C. Rempel, Trochu; the Rev. R Kern; Lt. Col. Robert Lee Doughterv, USAAF; the Rev. G. R. Dawe, the Rev. J. Nurses' Alumnae Holds Dinner To Honor Graduating Students Opportunities in the field of nursing are a result of expanded services during wartime, according to Miss Gertrude Hall of Montreal, general secretary of the Canadian Nurses' Association who spoke at a banquet Wednesday evening in the Macdonald hotel. The event was held by the Royal Alexandra Hospital Nurses' Alumnae Association and special guests were members of the spring graduating class of the hospital.

Miss Hall was accompanied here by Miss Margaret Kerr, editor and business manager of the "Canadian Nurse" who is also from Montreal. They were recently in Calgary and will leave this week for Vancouver.

TREMENDOUS EFFORT

Miss Hall told the student nurses that their contribution to the war effort was tremendous because they stabilized nursing services. While the graduate nurses went into the forces and offered their services to civilians in war cities and plants, the student nurse remained in the hospitals where her work was vastly appreciated on the home front.

"This class is graduating into a world still at war," the speaker continued, "but with the coming of victory and peace your contribution will be as greatly needed as ever.

"It is well worth your while to specialize, to take additional courses and clinical lectures in order to fit yourself for some special type of work. It is also important that you become identified at once with professional organizations such as the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses. This organization is an advantage to the individual because it knows and presents needs of the nurse and will help her to work out her problems and develop as a leader.

SERVE NEEDS

"The function of such an organization is to serve the needs of the community. Every nurse wants to be a true citizen and she may make her contribution as a citizen and as a nurse by working through her professional organization."

Miss Kerr spoke on the journal, the "Canadian Nurse." She said that the journal can do much to keep nurses aware of latest developments in nursing. It is able to do this by articles which are contributed through the National Nurses' organization and also by articles which nurses individually prepare dealing with procedures.

In Alberta she said, 34 per cent of the nurses subscribe to the magazine compared with 29 per cent for all of Canada.

Miss Kerr told the nurses that she was interested in raising the circulation of the magazine to benefit the nurse.

Miss Hall was introduced by Miss Ida Johnson, immediate past president of the AARN, and Miss Kerr was introduced by Miss Margaret Fraser, superintendent of nurses at the Royal Alexandra hospital. Miss Ella Howard, acting registrar for the AARN, gave a note of thanks.

Open Office Serve Chinese Residents

An advisory service for Chinese citizens in Edmonton covering matters from income tax to post-war trips to their homeland, has been opened in this city by F. A. Stewart-Dunn, former members of the chemistry department, University of Alberta.

He believes it is the only service of this type rendered to Chinese and hopes to be able to assist them with any problems which face them in this country.

While he was a faculty member at the University of Alberta he spent a year and a half sabbatical leave in the Orient, studying the Chinese language, customs and particularly Chinese medicines.

Helping to trace relatives in China through the International Red Cross, getting information on available shipping space for imports at the earliest possible date, and keeping in touch with transportation companies regarding travel to the Orient, are just a few of the services he is performing for his Chinese friends.

He keeps in touch with local chinese through their daily paper and all letterheads and signs at his office carry information in both English and Chinese. He is a past-president of the Canadian Corps Association.

Seamen Arrested In Theft of Fund

Two sailors were arrested early Thursday morning and charged by city police with theft of a Milk-for-Britain fund bottle containing several dollars in coins, from the Purple Lantern cafe.

The theft occurred about 3:35 a.m., according to cafe proprietors, who informed police that the two men had left the place just a few minutes before. When two uniformed men were located on Jasper Avenue and taken back to the cafe, they were identified as those responsible, police said.

A search of the men revealed that they had several dollars in small change in their pockets, and from the pocket of one man's clothes came a small glass container full of toothpicks, said to belong to the cafe.

Adjourn Trial Of Conspiracy Until Tuesday

Hearing of evidence in the conspiracy to defraud charge against Roderick A. MacDonald and Clarence E. Inman, Edmonton, was completed Thursday morning, and the trial was adjourned until Tuesday morning by Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing on application by Hugh Calais Macdonald, KC, defence counsel.

Testifying in his own defence MacDonald told the court he had carried on the promotion of carnivals and benefit dances for a period of five years.

PERCENTAGE BASIS

He said that usually he operated these activities for a sponsoring organization, dividing the proceeds on a percentage basis, or paying a stipulated sum for the sponsorship.

Answering Guy Patterson, KC, crown prosecutor, MacDonald outlined the methods adopted in the promotion of charity dances, and denied that he had conspired with any of the persons named in the indictment.

He said that all those named had been employed by him as collectors and telephone solicitors. They were given their instructions, and carried out those instructions under his supervision, MacDonald told the court. He never confided any of the particulars of his plans to the employees.

Collectors were paid $5 a day, and received the payment at the end of each day's work. Telephone solicitors were given 25 per cent of the proceeds of their calls. He said that Inman, his co-accused, worked on a salary basis for a period, and was placed on a percentage standing when the witness had to leave the city on business.

Questioned regarding the operation of the Polish Canadian Association dance, Mr. MacDonald said that the total proceeds amounted to $1,395. Of this amount $270 was paid to the sponsoring organization; $406.70 was paid in salaries and commissions; $162.80 for expenses, and $200 to the Riverdale Community League. Local Produce

BUTTER PRICES

No. 1, 34½; No. 2, 32½; No. 3, 30½.

CREAM PRICES

Prices for cream delivered to Edmonton creameries: Special grade, 44; No. 1, 43; No. 2, 37; off grade, 32.

All prices include government bonus of 10c to farmers.

EGG PRICES

Dealers now paying to country shippers: A large, 30; A medium, 28; A pullet, 21; grade B, 24; grade C, 18-19.

Wholesale to retail: A large, 37; A medium, 35; A pullet, 29; grade B, 31; grade C, 27.

Retail to consumers: A large, 44; A medium, 42; A pullet, 36; grade B, 38; grade C, 32.

The most important development on this egg market during the past week was an increase of 1c per dozen to producers on ungraded values for A large and A medium, and a 2c to 3c per dozen increase in paying prices for grade C. The market outlet for eggs is, of course, unchanged so that this increase is the result of competitive business. Receipts show an increase of 15 per cent. from the preceding week, and in value are 20 per cent. in excess of the corresponding period for 1944. Indications are that the peak week of production may be earlier than last year, which was April 22nd to May 6th. Quality continues to run high to top grades with slightly more soiled shells in evidence as a result of spring thaws. Six cars grade A large and medium were exported in shell to the British ministry, five carlots A large and A medium were oiled and placed in storage for fall shipment to the British ministry, and three carlots of A pullets and Bs were transferred to the local drying plant. Shipments to northern projects were lighter in volume than the preceding week.

POULTRY PRICES

The poultry market continues quiet with light arrivals of fowl and some late chicken. There was no carlot movement of frozen stocks, and stocks of chicken especially are well cleaned out. Only a very few broilers are as yet in evidence. Paping and selling prices on dressed poultry continue very firm as quoted. Dealers are guaranteeing for broilers 2 to 3½ lbs. dressed milkfed A 30c, milkfed B 28c, grade B 26c and grade C 22c, less 6c per head as a killing charge. Quotations on live No. 1 fowl remain unchanged at over 5 lbs. 17c, 4 to 5 lbs. 15c, No. 2 fowl 10c. No. 1 chicken over 4 lbs. 19c, under 4 lbs. 17c, No. 2 15c.

WEEKLY HATCHERY OUTLOOK REPORT

This week's report is based on reports received from 18 hatcheries with a setting capacity of 1,136,204 eggs. They report as an average 95 per cent. of capacity now used. Total eggs set since start of season 2,070,014 with total chicks hatched since start of season, 780,397, with hatchability average of 64 with many individual hatches from 80 to 96.

Most hatcheries were fully two weeks' later starting than for 1944. This situation was, of course, influenced by a decrease in orders for January and February chicks compared to 1944. A comparison of chicks hatched is shown as follows:

Jan.		Feb.
1945	4,689	1945	189,918

Advance bookings for March, April and well into May vary from good to heavy, and weather conditions may now be considered very helpful. Cockerels, both heavy and light breeds, have been moving very well during the past week, and altogether the hatchery outlook is considerably improved. There is to be no let up in the program to promote special raising of poultry meat from broiler weights to heavy roasters.

Grain Prices Edge Higher at Chicago

CHICAGO, March 29—(AP)—Grain futures edged higher in a dull session today. Short coverings and commission house buying accounted for the grains.

Most of the trade was concerned with evening-up positions in preparation for the Good Friday recess because of the possibility of important war developments before Saturday.

Wheat at times was up more than a cent.

At the finish wheat ⅛-1⅛ higher, corn was up ⅛-¼, oats were ⅛-¼ higher, rye was unchanged to up ⅜, barley was off ¼.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, March 29—(Reuters)—Encouraged by the continued good war news stock markets today presented a brighter appearance though at no time was business on a large scale.

There was varied demand among industrials with irons and steels and some textile issues attracting considerable attention while some support appeared for tobaccos and a few breweries.

British funds were quietly supported and occasionally 1-16 higher.

London markets will be closed until April 2.

Discussed in House

Finance Is Said Cornerstone Of Post-War Reconstruction

The question of finance is the cornerstone of the whole post-war reconstruction situation, Hon. A. J. Hooke, provincial secretary and chairman of the Alberta post-war reconstruction committee, stated in the Legislature Wednesday.

The minister, speaking on the post-war committee's 146,000-word final report tabled in the assembly Tuesday, declared Alberta's was the only reconstruction report he had examined which has dealt in any way with the question of financing post-war reconstruction.

Chairman of the post-war committee's finance sub-committee, Mr. Hooke explained findings of this group to members.

SALIENT PROPOSAL

He pointed to a salient recommendation of the sub committee, which states: "A competent national monetary authority operating in conjunction with the Bank of Canada and responsible to the people through Parliament, should exercise full and effective control over the operation of the monetary system, including the issue and withdrawal of all currency and credit and the chartered banks be required to operate as agencies for the national monetary authority in the issue of all monetary credits".

The minister said that as municipal bodies had made representations to the post-war committee, outlining projects for their areas, it had been pointed out the municipalities would have to depend on senior governments for financing.

The province, in its turn, goes to the Dominion, which is more or less the sum of all municipal districts in the country, Mr. Hooke went on. He suggested that if the municipalities cannot finance their projects individually, then the Dominion, composed of all municipal districts, could not finance them collectively.

PER CAPITA DEBT

Investigations by the committee have revealed citizens of Alberta are going into the post-war period "with a per capita debt of almost $2,000 around their necks," the committee chairman said.

He referred to suggestions that all that was needed in the post-war period was a continuation of the wartime economy of the country.

"There is no difference between the pre-war economy and the war economy, with one slight exception," members were told.

Mr. Hooke said the new department of economic affairs will "take over" where the post-war committee leaves off. It will implement recommendations in the report as fast as possible.

He paid high tribute to those who had worked on the post-war committee, as well as on the business survey committee headed by Reg. T. Rose, executive secretary, Edmonton Chamber of Commerce. The second committee tabled an interim report in the assembly at the same time the main post-war reconstruction report was submitted.

SECOND SPEAKER

Second speaker in the reconstruction report debate Wednesday was Mrs. C. R. Wood (SC-Stony Plain), chairman of the social welfare subcommittee.

Mrs. Wood dealt at length with findings of her group, dealing with nutrition, clothing and shelter problems. She said that those who expound the "export or perish" theory should wake up. "We are exporting, and we are perishing", the Stony Plain member declared. "To strive to feed our people on a health basis is infinitely better than trying to build up agriculture exports."

She said whereas Alberta's wool production was 4,000,000 pounds, investigations have disclosed 12,000,000 pounds are needed to produce clothing for Alberta citizens. Encouragement should be given to establishment of a wool factory in this province, the member added.

Mrs. Wood called for cheaper money for home-building projects, stating the Dominion should make money available for long-term loans at rates not exceeding 2 per cent.

The lady member also urged protection of consumer interests in the province. "Much is being done to further the interests of industry at the present time," she said. "The time is coming when consumer interests will come first."

URGES INFORMATION

Consumer research data is not given wide publicity in Canada, Mrs. Wood said. If research information was available, the resultant "purge" would result in vast economies for people of the country.

Discussing welfare of returned servicemen and women, Mrs. Wood said once the Dominion government has discharged its responsibilities to discharged veterans, some responsibility will fall to the provinces. "We can't lay all the work to be done on the Dominion's doorstep," she warned.

She added it was necessary for citizens to begin now to rebuild the world the servicemen and women had left, so that it would be up to their expectations when they returned. "It is our duty on the home front to get democracy working," she declared.

Plan Early Start On Phone Exchange

Demolition of the service station on the corner of 100 street and 102 avenue will start on Monday next, Maxwell C. Dewar, city architect, stated Wednesday.

The building is being torn down to make way for the $175,000 addition to the central telephone exchange. He said that demolition of the labor hall would be undertaken immediately the service station job was completed.

Tenders for the addition to the telephone exchange will be called within the next week or 10 days, and it is anticipated that construction will start about April 1.

The Edmonton Trade and Labor Council, according to present plans, will be housed in the new market building pending the completion of the trade body's plans to rent or construct new headquarters.

SGT. ROBERT HUGHES

Robert Hughes, Police Officer, Dies: 50 Years

Sgt. Robert Hughes, city police traffic department head, rushed to Royal Alexandra hospital Wednesday forenoon, died shortly after 10 p.m. about two hours after an emergency operation had been performed. Cause of death has not yet been learned and a post-mortem will be held, it was announced Thursday by Chief Constable Reg. Jennings.

The 50-year-old officer took ill while on duty Tuesday afternoon and was taken to his home. He showed no signs of improvement and was removed to hospital early Wednesday.

The flag outside police headquarters was dipped to half-mast at sunrise, and department personnel was plunged into gloom as word was spread that the amiable and capable officer had died.

Sgt. Hughes was born in Northern Ireland on March 16, 1895, fought with the British Army in the First Great War. He came to Canada in 1920.

JOINS POLICE FORCE

He joined the city police force here in December, 1920, serving on a police beat on the South Side. Later he transferred to the traffic department of which he was made head April 12 of last year. He had served on the force a total of 24 years.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made, but it was thought that a service and burial would take place Saturday.

PRAISE FROM CHIEF

Chief Constable Reg. Jennings, commenting on the officer's death said "I am greatly shocked. Sgt. Hughes' friendly manner and ready smile will be missed by every officer on the force."

Deputy Chief Alex Riddell said "Sgt. Hughes is going to be missed, not only by the men on this force, but by everyone who knew him on the streets. His passing has been a great shock."

Constable A. E. Woodward is taking temporary charge of the traffic department's work.

Baptists Protest French Broadcasts

Congregation of McDonald Baptist Church has registered a protest against the move to secure licenses for French-Canadian broadcasting stations here and elsewhere.

At a regular weekly meeting of the congregation held Wednesday the following resolution was carried unanimously by a standing vote:

That this congregational gathering at its regular weekly supper meeting held on Wednesday, March 28 at McDonald Baptist Church, Edmonton, learns with very sincere regret that four applications for French-Canadians radio broadcasting stations in the three prairie provinces have been received by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and that one of the four applications has already been approved and a license issued in Manitoba. That the other three applications are for two broadcasting stations in Saskatchewan and one in Alberta, which are awaiting final decision.

Further, this gathering goes on record as diametrically opposed to any effort at domination by any racial or religious group, and to any action that would have as its object sectionalism or dissension.

Further, we desire unity and nationhood in the west which can be best preserved by one tongue, one people, and one educational standard.

We therefore respectfully petition that no further racial broadcasting stations be established in the west, and that the license recently issued be cancelled forthwith.

That copies of the above be forwarded to the governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Minister of Munitions and Supply Hon. C. D. Howe, Hon. J. A. MacKinnon, and Mrs. Cora T. Casselman. Further, that a copy of the above be also sent to the Hon. T. C. Douglas, premier of Saskatchewan, expressing the hope that his government would take under immediate consideration the advisability in the interest of unity in the west of registering the strongest protest possible to the CBC and the Dominion government, against additional racial stations being permitted in the west.
